

Cambodians fire on, seize U.S. ship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An unarmed American merchant vessel reported Monday it had been seized under fire by a Cambodian naval vessel. President Ford termed it "an act of piracy" and warned of "serious consequences" unless the ship is promptly released.

Announcement of the incident came from White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, who said the container ship Mayaguez, had been fired on, seized on the high seas and taken into the Cambodian port of Kompongson along with its American crew.

There were immediate demands from some members of Congress that the administration take quick action to assure release of the ship and crew. A State Department spokesman said "we are taking immediate steps" along that line, but declined to elaborate.

Pentagon sources, however, said the aircraft carrier Coral Sea and several other ships had been ordered to sail for the Gulf of Thailand, where the seizure occurred.

They said the ship movements did not mean the United States had decided to use force—that it is standard procedure to send ships to a trouble spot so that if they are eventually needed, they will be available.

Sources said a primary concern was to win the release of the crew, indicating use of force was low on the list of options since the Cambodians could easily retaliate by punishing the crew.

Nessen told reporters at the White House that Ford "considers this seizure an act of piracy." He said the President held an emergency 45-minute meeting with the National Security Council, and warned that failure of the Cambodians to immediately release the vessel "will have the most serious consequences." Like the State Department spokesman, Nessen declined to spell out what alternatives the President had in seeking return of the ship, owned by Sea-Land Inc. of Menlo Park, N.J.

Later, Nessen said there had been no contact, directly or indirectly, with the Khmer Rouge government which took control in Cambodia after the American-backed regime fell.

Asked if the freighter might have carried intelligence equipment for a spy mission, Nessen said: "The answer is a flat no."

He said "as far as we know" there were no injuries to the captain of the ship or its 39-man crew members. He said the vessel sent a "mayday" international distress signal before its radio went silent.

Conflicting totals were given for the number of persons aboard. Nessen and Sea-Land's Washington office used a figure of 40, but Sea-Land headquarters in New Jersey issued a list containing only 39 names, captain included.

Nessen also disclosed that the Cambodians had seized a Panamanian ship on the high seas several days ago and released it. The White House said it had information that this vessel was headed toward Bangkok.

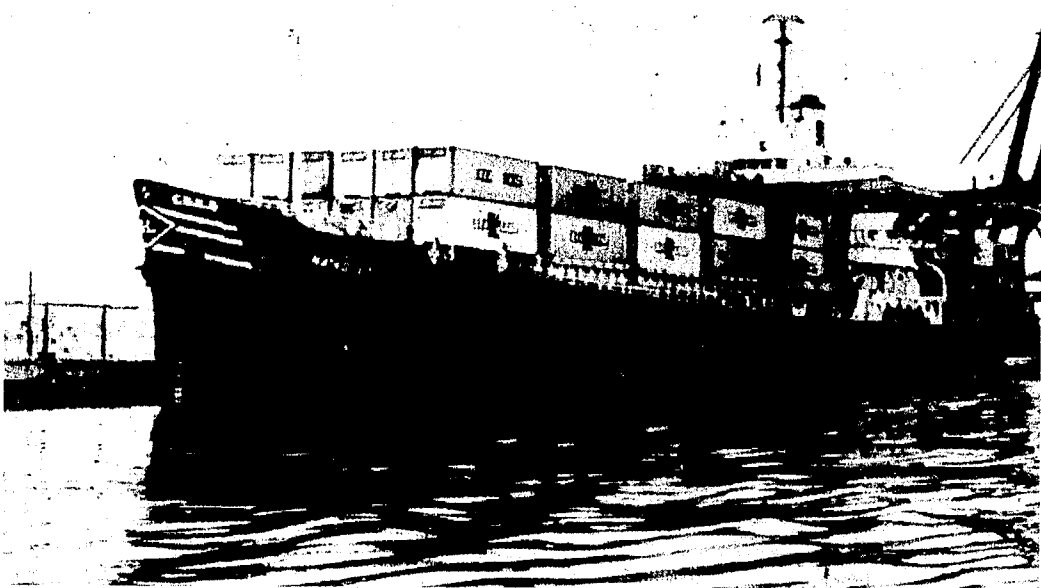

Nessen said the seizure occurred in the Gulf of Thailand, 60 miles from the Cambodian coast and 8 miles off a small rock island claimed by Cambodia and Vietnam. The ship was en route from Hong Kong to Thailand.

Jack Mayor, vice president of Sea-Land in Washington, said the ship carried 40 Americans. He described it as a C2 class cargo ship of about 10,000 tons loaded with "just general cargo ... anything from soup to nuts."

Mayor said, "We have some military cargo but it's not classified stuff of any kind."

Asked to describe the situation, Nessen said, "I'm not going to characterize it as grave or serious."

E-burg youth asks court to change murder verdict

STROUDSBURG — A motion for a new determination of a degree of guilt was filed Monday in the Monroe County Prothonotary's Office by attorneys for Gregg E. Porter, 17, of East Stroudsburg R.D. 5, convicted of third degree murder.

The motion alleges the facts of the case support conviction on nothing higher than involuntary manslaughter due to a lack of malice on the part of the defendant.

Porter and a second youth, Michael Chase, 18, of 209 Grove St., East Stroudsburg were convicted last week of third degree murder in connection with the shooting death of James D. Zane, 57, a Smithfield Township service station owner on Jan. 24.

Both had earlier pleaded guilty to a general charge of murder.

Monroe County President Judge Arlington W. Williams rendered the third degree murder verdict following oral arguments by defense attorneys to obtain conviction on a manslaughter charge, and by the district attorney to get conviction on second degree murder.

According to the motion filed Monday by attorneys George Royle IV and George Westervelt Jr., a reconsideration of the court's determination of the degree of guilt was asked.

The attorneys allege the conviction on third degree murder is contrary to the facts of the case as agreed to with the district attorney, and contrary to the law as applied to those facts.

The motion also alleges

Porter's right to due process of law was denied in that the burden to prove his degree of guilt rose no higher than manslaughter rested on the defendant.

"To the extent the court's degree of guilt determination rests on finding that the defendant knowingly or intentionally participated in a felony resulting in a criminal homicide, such determination is contrary to the stipulated facts, and reasonable inferences from those facts, is contrary to the law and denied the defendant the benefit of the presumption that he is innocent of murder."

The attorneys also alleged that Porter's guilt under the stipulated facts rises no higher than involuntary manslaughter and that the court "erred in determining that actual or implied malice was shown under those facts."

In his written opinion when handing down his decision, Judge Williams said it would be "inappropriate to find that the agreed statement of facts show the offense to be involuntary manslaughter rather than some higher degree of homicide."

The judge stated that a conclusive presumption of implied malice is imputable to both defendants and that the presence of malice is inconsistent with a finding of involuntary manslaughter.

There have been no post-verdict motions filed on behalf of Chase.

A third youth charged in the killing, Gregory Powlett, 17, of 20 Kiwanis St., East Stroudsburg, is scheduled to go on trial next month.

18-week probe comes to an end

Spying binge by CIA not proven

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The vice chairman of the Rockefeller commission said Monday it was his opinion that with "one or two major exceptions," the CIA never engaged in massive domestic spying.

C. Douglas Dillon, talking with reporters as the commission completed its 18-week investigation of the CIA, said the inquiry had uncovered "no major surprises" beyond original published reports last December that the agency was involved in wiretapping and opening of mail from private citizens.

Dillon said the commission thoroughly investigated allegations the CIA was involved in plots to assassinate foreign leaders, and centered on such reports involving Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

The former Treasury secretary, second-ranking member of the special presidential commission headed by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, said the commission probably would not shed any new light on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

"Was there any indication of massive lawbreaking — domestic spying by the CIA?" Dillon was asked.

"Not in my opinion," he replied. "My own personal opinion, which is not necessarily that of the commission, is that with one or two rather major exceptions, everything that was done was rather peripheral and connected in one way or another with the legitimate work of the agency."

"The allegation is that the agency was devoting a major part of its time on domestic areas when it was supposed to be operating abroad," Dillon said.

Kennedy-Glenn ticket favored over Ford-Rocky

NEW YORK (UPI) — The results of a Harris Survey released Monday indicate that a 1976 Democratic slate of Sen. Edward Kennedy for President and Sen. John Glenn for vice president would beat a Republican ticket of President Ford and Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller by a ratio of 38 to 30.

The same poll, however, showed that a third party ticket of Gov. Ronald Reagan and Gov. George Wallace would receive 23 per cent of the vote — enough to throw the election into the House of Representatives for ultimate resolution.

Harris said the vote for Reagan of California and Wallace of Alabama was the highest ever recorded for a third party in any of its surveys.

A cross section of 1,384 likely voters were asked, said Harris, if they had to choose "right now" whether they would vote for Ford and Rockefeller, Kennedy and Glenn or Reagan and Wallace, the last two designated in the poll as "conservative independents."

Viet Cong in charge of Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — Thirteen days after the Communists captured Saigon, it appeared Monday that the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government, not the military or the North Vietnamese, is in charge of the government.

The outline has emerged slowly. Until two days ago all government announcements were signed either by a "Citizens Committee" or "the Saigon-Gia Dinh Military Management Committee" under the name of Col. Gen. Tran Van Tra, whose title was left vague. Gia Dinh is the province that includes Saigon.

Saturday, however, the Provisional Revolutionary Government of the Republic of South Vietnam began making official announcements over the government's "Radio Liberation" from Saigon.

The first such announcement proclaimed a three-day holiday May 15, 16 and 17 to celebrate the Communist takeover.

The radio said the holiday proclamation was signed by Huynh Tan Phat, president of the PRG.

This development temporarily ended speculation that the new regime was being run by Viet Cong military leaders or the civilian heads of the North Vietnamese forces which have occupied Saigon since the surrender April 30 of the last non-Communist government of South Vietnam, that of Duong Van "Big" Minh.

The holiday proclamation said each building should fly both the PRG and North Vietnamese flags and display a photograph or portrait of Ho Chi Minh, the former North Vietnamese leader who died four years ago and whose birthday will be celebrated May 19.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee Monday completed an energy tax bill the chairman called a better program than President Ford's.

By a vote of 19 to 16, after an angry four-hour session, the committee approved a bill which would:

—Raise federal gasoline taxes by 3 cents next Jan. 1 and by up to 20 cents a year later if consumption continued to rise.

—Tax business use of scarce fuels.

—Tax autos with poor mileage.

—Reward home-owners for making their homes more energy-efficient.

—Limit imports of oil and petroleum products.

The committee closed off any attempt, either in committee or later in the House, to add to the bill a clause providing for removal of price controls on oil and natural gas combined with a tax on the "windfall profits" which would result.

Committee Chairman Al Ullman said he hoped to bring the bill before the House for debate and a vote next week before Congress leaves for its Memorial Day recess.

"This has been a long, tough ordeal," Ullman said. "I don't think there is a tougher question to be resolved before this Congress. This is an invisible crisis and that is why it is so difficult to legislate ... This bill is not all that all of us wanted, but when you compare it on an honest basis, this is going to be a better program by far than that offered by the administration."

At the end of the final session of wrangling, all the Republicans voted to oppose the bill and they were joined by Democratic Reps. Phil M.

Landrum of Georgia, Joseph E. Karth of Minnesota, Otis G. Pike of New York and Henry Helstoski of New Jersey.

During the long session the committee first rejected, then approved, a move to delete a section that would have allowed the President to set up a federal purchase system for oil imports. That could have led to competitive bidding by foreign countries for the American oil market.

Senate unit approves aid bill for refugees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted 13 to 0 Monday to authorize $405 million for resettling more than 100,000 South Vietnamese in this country.

L. Dean Brown, chairman of the administration's Vietnam Task Force, had urged the Senate panel earlier in the day to authorize funds quickly because the refugee program was grinding to a halt —with resettlement camps filled and U.S. ships circling Guam and Wake Island unable to discharge refugees.

Sen. John Sparkman, the committee chairman, said he hoped the full Senate would vote on the recommendation sometime this week. The House is expected to vote on a similar measure later this week.

The bill, as reported out of committee, is similar to an appropriations bill recommended last week by a House subcommittee which designated $405 million over a 14-month period. The administration has been seeking $507 million.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield abstained from the committee vote and told newsmen he wanted more information on whether it was possible to use military aid funds which had been appropriated for the Saigon government, but remain unspent.

Mansfield said he was annoyed with "the rather flip", unenthusiastic way some administration officials have reacted to a Senate-approved bill to divert these unspent military funds for refugees. He called for "a very thorough and conscientious set of hearings" on the refugee problem and resettlement plans.

Brown urged the panel to approve Ford's $507 million request, saying: "Guam and Wake are full, and we have ships circling the islands."

The Pentagon announced that due to the increasing flow of refugees, it has decided to open four barracks at Fort Chaffee, Ark., in order to boost the base's capacity from 20,000 to 24,000. On Monday there were 17,900 refugees at the camp.

Communists tighten grip on Laotian armed forces

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — The Communist Pathet Lao used its new position of power in the Laotian coalition government Monday to tighten its grip on non-Communist military forces. The commander of the army quickly followed its orders.

Prince Souvanna Phouma, the neutralist premier of the last non-Communist nation in Indochina, meanwhile broadcast a radio appeal for calm to Laotians and foreigners panicked by the political deterioration in Laos.

Kham Ouane Boupha, the Pathet Lao member named as acting defense minister following the resignation of four rightist members of the coalition, issued a communique forbidding movement of loyalist — non-Communist — war equipment and troops.

"All officers and men should be prepared to follow my orders," the communique said.

It demanded that military units declare loyalty to the coalition and the National Political Consultative Council controlled by the Pathet Lao and warned of punitive action against troops for disobeying its orders.

After the communique was broadcast on the national radio, the army commander, Lt. Gen. Bounpone Makphepharak, ordered that Kham Ouane's directives be followed.

Bounpone is a rightist general who so far has survived the purge of several military leaders that accompanied the cabinet resignations.

A number of senior officers were reported to be ready to leave along with the ousted rightists, but how widespread the departures might be was hard to judge because Monday was a holiday and most of them would not normally be at their posts.

Bounpone said any soldier not present for duty would be considered a deserter and most military units made the necessary pledge of loyalty to the government.

Each side has its own army and Communist troops are stationed within 50 miles of the capital.

Souvanna said the government would continue to apply the 1973 peace agreement that established the coalition government in the kingdom bordered by both Vietnams and Cambodia—all now ruled by Communists.

Some refugees homesick

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (UPI) — Some refugees in the capacity crowd at this giant Marine Corps base are desperately homesick and worried about an uncertain future to the point of suicide, a Vietnamese doctor reported Monday.

Dr. Hoang Van Duc, 50, is practicing medicine in Camp 4, a tent city of 1,800 refugees, many of whom yearn for their homeland.

"If a plane were to leave for Saigon today half this camp would be empty," he said.

The waiting period—as long as two weeks—before the refugees can be cleared to settle down in other areas is stressful, he said.

"There is much despair here," Duc reported. "They are anxious about everything. They have no future at all. They are anxious about their status, anxious about jobs. They are anxious about losing their identities."

Israeli troops stage raids against guerrilla hideouts

By United Press International Israeli troops raided suspected Arab guerrilla strongholds in southern Lebanon for the first time in four months and captured five hostages in an overnight operation, the military high command said Monday in Tel Aviv.

Reports from Beirut said the raiding force of about 100 soldiers "kidnaped" six civilians, including a member of the Lebanese Communist party Politburo and a woman, and blew up a restaurant and a medical clinic.

It was the first raid into southern Lebanon since mid-January when Israeli mechanized forces blasted guerrilla concentrations around the village of Kfar Chouba.

In other developments: —An Austrian spokesman said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko would meet in Vienna next week to discuss the forthcoming Geneva Middle East conference. A spokesman in Bonn said Kissinger would visit West Germany May 20-21.

—Egyptian President Anwar Sadat arrived in Kuwait at the start of a tour that will take him to Iraq, Jordan and Syria to map Middle East strategy with Arab leaders prior his June meeting with President Ford in Austria.

—Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, the highest ranking Moscow official ever to visit Libya, arrived in Tripoli for talks on economic aid for the oil-rich Arab state.

— The Israeli newspaper Ha'aretz said in a dispatch from Washington the United States and the Soviet Union in recent weeks have "held contacts on the question of the Middle East which included discussion of various details of agreements" to be brought up at the Geneva meeting.

Ford watching situation closely

No evacuation plans set for Laos

WASHINGTON (U P I) — President Ford does not plan "at this time" to order a Saigon - like evacuation of Americans from Laos although the Communists appear to have increased their political pressure there, a White House spokesman said Monday.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters the United States was watching the situation in Laos "very closely" but "the policy is not to evacuate at this time."

The State Department said there are approximately 1,000 Americans in Laos. It added that the military situation continues to be calm and there had been no report of any public political demonstrations.

The administration has faced widespread criticism for allegedly waiting too long to begin the evacuation of Americans and friendly South Vietnamese from Saigon when the city's fall to the Communists became inevitable.

State Department spokesman Robert L. Funseth, in a separate briefing, noted Laos Premier Souvanna Phouma had virtually conceded that the Pathet Lao have won the struggle for control of Laos.

Funseth said that the United States continues to maintain relations with the Souvanna Phouma government.

Nessen was asked how the White House can justify continued assistance to a "demonstrably Communist government." He told reporters that United States policy towards Asia is constantly being assessed, and aides later passed the word that "in a changing situation, these programs are kept under review."

What's news

Gun control law tested

TRENTON, N.J. — The state argued before the Supreme Court Monday that all shotguns and rifles should be registered, not just those bought after a gun control law was passed in 1966. A public defender for two men accused of carrying an unregistered shotgun argued that the law should not be retroactive. The Supreme Court will rule later this year on whether the law should apply to all long guns. Deputy Attorney General Peter N. Gilbreth said the law should be made retroactive to require anyone who has a shotgun or rifle to obtain a permit from the state.

Another setback for Britain

LONDON — Britain's already hard hit economy suffered another setback Monday as the pound sterling took a beating on international money markets. The pound fell to its all-time low against a grouping of 10 major currencies in early trading before the Bank of England intervened to buy up pounds and ease the pressure. Even so, the run on sterling meant the currency had effectively been devalued 24.9 per cent since December, 1971, and had hit its lowest mark ever against the French and Belgian francs and the Dutch guilder. The pound also fell nearly two cents to $2.30.

Church to try priest

AKRON, Ohio — The Rev. L. Peter Beebe goes on trial today at St. Paul Episcopal Church, charged with violating canon law by allowing two irregularly ordained women priests to celebrate Holy Communion. Beebe has been charged with breaking his vows and defying Bishop John Burt of the Episcopal Diocese of Ohio by inviting the women priests to celebrate the Eucharist at Christ Church in Oberlin, Ohio. Beebe is the second Episcopal priest to undergo such a trial. The Rev. William Wendt, rector of the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation in Washington, D.C., stood trial last week for defying the church's stand against women priests. No decision has yet been announced in that case.

Rape, murder suspect spotted

PHILADELPHIA — Charles Stickle, 20, a suspect sought since two girls were raped and set on fire last Friday night, was seen in the Manayunk section of the city, police said Monday. One of the girls, Tina Statuti, 16, died after she was doused with gasoline and set afire. Beverly Roddenbough, also 16, her companion, remained in critical but stable condition Monday at St. Agnes Hospital with burns over 90 per cent of her body. Police in nearby Conshohocken said a woman who was a school classmate of Stickle's saw him in Manayunk Sunday night while she was driving home. The woman said she was "no more than eight feet" from Stickle when he was in a car at an intersection.

Warships exchange visits

BOSTON — Two Soviet destroyers, manned by hundreds of eager and curious teen-aged sailors, glided into Boston Harbor Monday for the first time since World War II to a thunderous 21-gun salute and the cheers of onlookers. Across the ocean in Leningrad Harbor, two U.S. Navy guided missile ships — the first to visit the port in 113 years — received a similar ceremonial salute. The reciprocal five-day visits commemorate the 30th anniversary of V-E Day. It also marked the first time since World War II that a Soviet warship entered a U.S. port. Seven hundred curious Russian sailors, average age 19, manned the destroyers Boykiy and Zhguchiy. The U.S. guided missile frigate Leahy and the guided missile destroyer Tattnell carried the same number of crewmen.

Court to rule on housing issue

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court Monday agreed to rule on whether courts can force the federal government to build public housing in predominantly white suburban areas to end segregated housing in inner cities. The decision, expected some time next year, could have far-reaching implications for blacks trying to escape inner city high-rises which have become virtual ghettos in cities across the country. The Department of Housing and Urban Development appealed after the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals ordered a plan to build federally financed housing in the predominantly white suburban counties around Chicago.

Truck weight repeal sought

WASHINGTON — Common Cause Monday urged the House Public Works Committee to schedule hearings on legislation to repeal truck weight increases enacted by the last Congress. The citizens lobbying group, in a letter to committee chairman Robert Jones, D-Ala., charged that the weight increases were enacted under "questionable parliamentary maneuvers" combined with a "heavily financed" lobbying campaign by truck lines.

Doctors' strike spreads in Calif.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Doctors in three more counties Monday joined a 12-day walkout which has halted all but emergency surgery and caused drastic layoffs in San Francisco's private hospitals.

Anesthesiologists in San Mateo, Santa Clara and Sacramento counties refused to provide their services in some hospitals except in cases of "life or death" surgery.

They walked out in sympathy with anesthesiologists in San Francisco and other Northern California areas who have refused to renew malpractice insurance and are demanding that the state legislature act to relieve them of high premium rates.

Some of the 50 affected hospitals in the San Francisco area were down to one-third their normal patient population. Losses to the hospitals were running from $10,000 a day to $25,000 a day, a spokesman for the Northern California Hospital Association said.

Nearly half the area's hospital employees have been laid off and most of the others are on a two or three-day work week. Administrative personnel have had their pay cut up to 30 per cent. Some of the hospitals said another week without income-producing surgery could bankrupt them.

The burgeoning anesthesiologists' walkout is aimed at pressuring Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. to call a special legislative session to deal with the malpractice issue.

High Court supports Boston school ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court refused Monday to interfere with lower court decisions that Boston authorities wrongfully promoted racial segregation in city schools.

The Court, in a brief order without comment, left standing the decisions which have given rise to turmoil, particularly in South Boston, during the current school year.

U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., who originally found racial discrimination in several areas of school administration, issued a new plan last week to remedy the situation.

No specific plan was before the Supreme Court —merely the issue of whether lower federal courts were correct in upholding Garrity's finding of purposeful segregation.

Garrity ruled that the Boston School Committee intentionally brought about or maintained segregation through use of facilities, districting, feeder patterns, transfer policies, assignment of faculties and administration of vocational and examination schools.

The 1st Circuit Court of Appeals, in upholding Garrity, said: "In the light of the ample factual record and the precedents of the Supreme Court, we do not see how the court could have arrived at any other conclusion."

Officials in Boston urged to prevent school trouble

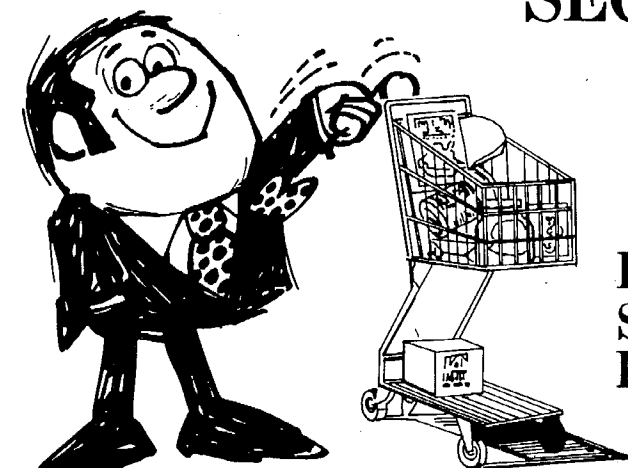

BOSTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Monday urged school and police officials to act to alleviate a potentially "explosive situation" at two racially troubled Boston high schools.

Newark schools boycotted

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — More than 27,000 public school students boycotted classes Monday in the third day of protests over threatened teacher layoffs and cutbacks in courses such as art, music and home economics.

Authorities said six schools were left virtually empty by the boycott, including four in the industrialized Ironbound section which has traditionally supported the Newark Teachers Union.

Walkouts, picketing and class boycotts began last Thursday, following the announcement that a $14 million deficit in the 1975-76 school budget would force the layoff of 900 teachers and 600 other school employees.

Barnstorming is still the vogue in Barrett Township

By RUTH VINCE
Pocono Record Reporter
CANADENSIS — Barnstorming is alive and well in Canadensis. Keeping it alive is Ivan Battern and Rayford Powell at their Flying Dollar Airport.

Located a quarter of a mile off Dutch Hill Road in Canadensis, Battern said he named it the Flying Dollar because "money goes like it had wings." But Powell calls it the "Outback International."

When not barnstorming over the Poconos, restoring and selling antique planes, the two men are flying all over the world in DC-8's.

In 1970 the Iowa-born Battern was looking for a farm in the Poconos where he could operate his antique plane business. He heard about the Barrett-Skytop Airport being for sale.

"It had been closed for 20 years," Battern said. "I bought it because it was just what I had in mind."

Still using the 2,260 foot grass runway, the men did renovate the original hangar to base the aircraft.

The only non-antique plane allowed at the airport is a Lake Amphibian Flying Boat.

Battern will take you on a

flight reminiscent of the barnstorming era that followed World War I, when passengers were flown on irregular flights or on joy rides, and pilots were doing stunts at circuses and carnivals.

Shades of khaki breeches, flying helmets and goggles, you soar at the astounding speed of 85-90 miles per hour, bringing back the nostalgia of barnstorming.

Battern said he and Powell are called the "yellow eagles, that's like the gold eagle only more timid."

Battern said he flew his first plane when he was 14 years old. He has had a "love affair" with them ever since.

A 1929 Travelair started the men in the antique aircraft business.

Battern heard about the plane, bought it for $5,000, stripped it down to the bare bone, put it back together and flew it to California.

This same plane was used in war movies during the 1930's, according to Battern.

"It was fixed up to resemble a World War I German Fokker," he said.

Anthony H. G. Fokker of the Netherlands built military planes for Germany in World War I. After the war he came to the United States to build civilian and military aircraft.

Battern and Powell recalled some of their flights around the world.

"We were called the monkey pilots when we were making four trips a month transporting monkeys from New Delhi, India to polio foundations in the states," Battern said.

Both he and Powell recall times when the monkeys got out of their cages and suddenly jumped on their shoulders.

Not only have the men flown monkeys as part of their cargo, but they have transported tigers and snakes, and often had hairy traveling.

Battern recalled a time when his civilian outfit took an army sergeant out of Cuba. "We had closed orders and it was the first time a civilian plane had to find out where it was going."

Monkeys, tigers, and snakes were mild experiences compared to one flight to Borneo in a BOAC.

"We were over the Persian Gulf when the plane was hijacked. Five holes were shot in the plane," Battern said.

"But everything worked out O.K.," he added as if this were just another flight.

Powell was somewhat reluctant to tell of one experience but Battern wasn't.

"It was on a flight from New York to San Juan, Puerto Rico. One engine shut down and suddenly we lost our second engine as we approached the airport," he said.

"Suddenly the cockpit door opened and a nun said "Boys, you had better pray."

"I was the pilot and Powell the flight engineer, so I told him I was busy and he should do something religious."

"Ray took off his hat and said he was going back and take up a collection," he laughed.

Jokingly Battern said he thought pilots were crazy, but he found that photographers were crazier.

"I had one up and he kept telling me the wing was getting in his way. After he repeated a number of times for me to get the wing out of the way so he could get his shot, I turned the plane upside down."

"I was sure I would scare the hell out of him," Battern laughed. "But he just yelled 'hold it there!'"

"Well anyway, flying upside down keeps the rain out of your face," he quipped.

Although Battern and Powell joke about some of their flights they are both serious about their profession.

Truck overturns on I-380

FERN RIDGE — A Virginia man escaped serious injury Saturday night when he lost control of a tractor-trailer on Interstate 380.

State police at Fern Ridge said Fred Theodore Cuddy Jr., 47, of Roanoke, Va., received slight lacerations of his right knee in the accident at 10 p.m. Saturday.

He lost control of the tractor-trailer an eighth of a mile east of exit two and skidded 150 feet across both lanes.

The trailer overturned on the medial strip while the tractor remained upright. A small fire started in the refrigerator unit and was extinguished by Cuddy and passing motorists.

Damages were listed as $20,000 to the tractor, $1,000 to the trailer, and $3,000 to the cargo. The vehicle is owned by C. D. Brooks of Troy, Ala.

About half the cargo of 1,600 cases of frozen French fries were declared contaminated by agricultural inspector Harold Claypoole.

The Coolbaugh Township Fire Company and Ambulance and the Pocono Summit Fire Company were called to the accident.

The investigating officer was Trooper Jerome Majeski.

Robbery hearings waived

MILFORD — Two men charged with robbing the First National Bank of Pike County's Wallenpaupack branch have waived preliminary hearings before District Magistrate Dore James.

Gerald Stanton, 20, of Lake Ariel R.D. 4 and Jeffrey Hennings, 20, of Lake Ariel R.D. 2, waived hearings and were committed to the Pike County Jail in lieu of $40,000 bail each. A date for a court hearing still has not been set.

Stanton, charged with robbery, aggravated assault, theft, and receiving stolen property, was arrested last week in Moscow by state police at Milford and FBI agents. Hennings surrendered to state police later that week.

Police said they are still looking for the $11,437 stolen from the bank.

Ecology camp to open

TANNERSVILLE — The Monroe County Junior Conservation Camp will be held August 10 through 16 at the Blue Ridge-Cherry Valley Rod & Gun Club, according to Camp Director Larry Smeltz.

The camp will be open to Monroe County boys and girls, aged 14 to 18. Preference will be given to those planning a future career in conservation or environmental programs.

An advisory program committee has been formed, according to Ernie Shimp, chairman of the Cooperative Extension Service.

Project may cost $400,000

Pike authority prices incinerator

MILFORD — Members of the Pike County General Authority were given an estimate of $130,000 to $400,000 for an incineration plant for the county.

Edward Schoemmel, an incinerator salesman with Combustion Engineering, Inc. and Uni-Rep., Inc. of Malvern, informed authority members that "a landfill is the way to go, if you can work it out."

At present, Schoemmel said Department of Environmental Resources (DER) requirements make it difficult to operate incinerators in communities with limited financing.

Stringent regulations regarding pollution in incinerator residue, and installation of an air purifier and scrubber device in incineration plants make the incineration route costly, Schoemmel noted.

Last year, only six incinerator permits were issued in Pennsylvania, he said.

Members also heard from Roger Rosencrance, operator of a 150-acre landfill at Beach Lake in Wayne County.

Rosencrance currently provides a site for the disposal of solid waste for western parts of Pike County and noted he could have something in operation for the whole county in two months.

Because of the distance of his landfill site from the eastern end of Pike County, the county would need two transfer stations at a cost of about $40,000 each. The transfer stations would be located on about two acres of land and provide a septic system, toilet facilities and a supply of fresh water and electric power.

If the county decided to enter into an agreement with Rosencrance, the cost for disposal would be approximately $9.50 a ton.

Although he could not guarantee he would be in operation for any specific number of years, he said he would supply an operational bond when a contract for services was signed.

Authority members will meet again Tuesday, May 27 to hear from more speakers on alternate solid waste disposal facilities.

Pike junk ring hearing postponed

MILFORD — A court hearing for Phillip J. Cardinale, 44, of Rowlands has been postponed until the September term of Pike County Court.

Cardinale was indicted by a Pike County grand jury in April on charges stemming from a police investigation into a multi-million dollar junk ring.

He pleaded not guilty to eight counts of receiving stolen goods and three counts of possessing vehicles with defaced or altered serial numbers.

After a motion by Cardinale's attorney, the court granted a continuance of the case until the September term of court. The court will convene the third Monday of September.

State police at Milford and FBI agents raided Cardinale's mountaintop junk yard in February and found an estimated $1,250,000 worth of stolen goods.

In the raid, police confiscated 33 vehicles including a Russian semi-trailer loaded with hydraulic jacks, a crane, power shovel and semi-tractor.

Cardinale is currently free on $25,000 bail.

Men's Lib
has a point

While women campaign loudly for the Equal Rights Amendment and battle sex discrimination in all aspects of life, a parallel movement is slowly growing among the menfolk.

The purpose of Men's Lib, as the movement is most often called, is to free the male from the same sort of sex-determined, stereotyped roles women are battling.

The difference is that, while women crave greater responsibility, men-libbers want less — or, more precisely, the right to accept less without being branded failures by their peers.

It makes sense. Consider the little boy who may have little talent or no liking for sports. He'd rather read and paint, or even play the piano. He's branded a sissy by his playmates (if indeed he has any at all) and unless he has an understanding father, dad pressures him to "act like a man," too.

The same bogged-down thinking that insists little girls learn to cook, sew and play house (she's given dolls for gifts) also contends that little boys learn the attitudes that will prepare him to accept responsibility for total authority in the household and bread-winning status (he's given tools, sporting equipment and toy guns for gifts).

Men's Lib wants to change all that. It wants a man to be able to say, "I don't want to be a boss or climb the corporate ladder; I want to have a job I can enjoy and that lets me enjoy my family."

While we don't think there are too many men who would want to mind the home and let their wives pursue careers, we'll bet there are plenty who would love to share the housekeeping chores so their wives could work, and both hold jobs that would allow the maximum time and freedom for a full family life.

As one member of a Lehigh Valley Men's Lib group put it, "I'm expected to be a breadwinner, guardian, a tower of strength, in control, show no emotions and be an omniscient administrator. I had to arrange the car loans, obtain the mortgage, earn all the money, determine the children's future and discipline them. Such total responsibility almost added up to being God."

A man is considered a failure if he isn't "successful" in his career and omnipotent at home. That is not only unfair but leads to the high incidence of heart disease, ulcers, depression and neurosis among men. Curing those ills by changing attitudes that force such distortions on men is what Men's Lib is all about, and it's on the right track.

Costly cheap thrill

One of the biggest problems plaguing merchants is shoplifting. Authorities say that some of the worst and most constant offenders are teenagers, and it distresses them that there has been a tendency on the part of many people to regard adolescent shoplifting as no more than a lark, a game of wits.

Make no mistake, shoplifting isn't kid mischief to be taken lightly. It's a crime that is costing Pennsylvanians considerably more than $440 million a year. The thievery has become so serious in the last few years that vigorous campaigns have been launched by businessmen, educators, the police and other community leaders to try to get across to teenagers and their parents that anyone who steals is a criminal. And thieves are put in jail. It's as simple as that.

Even with a suspended sentence a shoplifter has had it. The offender must report to a probation officer regularly. He can't get a driver's license. No college wants him. His life becomes a nightmare. Stealing is indeed a loser's game.

A greater effort is needed by both parents and teachers to get through to the young with these truths before they cross the threshold of the teens. Our schools should do much more in the way of teaching children about the laws of the land.

"It's just too bad that parents don't take a harder attitude toward shoplifting," one Pennsylvania prosecutor has said. "There has been too much of a breakdown of the family unit."

There's no lack of evidence supporting that widely-held opinion.

Mafia tomato seller has offer Pentagon can't refuse

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department has bought $1.1 million worth of tomatoes, strawberries and cantaloupes from a firm whose top salesman is Mafia godfather Carlos Marcello.

The produce was approved by still another federal agency, the Agriculture Department, which dutifully inspected the Mafia man's tomatoes and pronounced them suitable for government soups and salads.

Then the Cosa Nostra comestibles were distributed to Army, Navy and Air Force installations in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and Panama.

At least two civilian agencies, the Public Health Service and Veterans Administration, also get tomatoes from Marcello through the Defense Department.

Although responsible government officials privately insist they don't like doing business with a Mafia generalissimo, they are obliged by law to buy their tomatoes from the lowest bidder. Not unless the tomatoes fail to pass muster with the Agriculture Department can they be rejected.

The Justice Department has brought pressure on government agencies not to do business with mob-tainted companies. But Mafia lawyers have sued to stop this discrimination.

Marcello is identified in secret government files as "the top ranking member of the Mafia in (the) New Orleans area." He "gained (his) reputation through terroristic activities," the files also reveal.

The public record of his syndicate connections dates back to the Kefauver hearings of the 1950s. He figured again in the "Joe Valachi" hearings of the 1960s and the House crime hearings of the 1970s.

The House hearings indicated he was a $1,600-a-month "salesman" for the Pelican Tomato Company of New Orleans. He is reputed to be an effective salesman, whose offers are seldom refused. He started out in 1962-63 by helping to wangle a tough contract with several supermarkets.

Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

For the record, Marcello has said only that he is "a public relations man for Pelican Tomato" and also adviser to Pelican Tomato." He has sworn under oath he has never been in the Mafia.

Ostensibly, he works for Joseph Matassa, the company secretary-treasurer, with whom Marcello was indicted and acquitted on a jury-tampering trial in 1965.

"He is always a gentleman," said Matassa of Marcello. The tomato tycoon denied any knowledge of Marcello's Mafia ties. "We never do anything with anybody but good people," he said. We were unable to reach Marcello.

More On Martin: President Ford stubbornly insisted last week that American Ambassador Graham Martin did a "good job" of directing the evacuation of South Vietnam.

"I never had much faith in Monday-morning quarterbacks or grandstand quarterbacks," said the President. "I would rather put faith in the man who carried out a very successful evacuation."

Apparently, this barb was aimed at us. We began reporting last month how Martin was botching the evacuation. Because there is a lesson to be learned from every disaster, it may be worthwhile to review the facts.

Actually, the story began before Martin arrived in Saigon in July, 1973. We reported on Feb. 1, 1973, that the Joint Chiefs expected the ceasefire to break down and the Communists to win control of all Vietnam.

"Secretly, the Joint Chiefs don't believe President Thieu can survive . . ." we wrote. "(They) have grave doubts about the South Vietnamese Army's ability to repel an offensive without massive American air and artillery support."

Martin emphatically disagreed with this assessment, and he never lost faith in President Thieu until Saigon began collapsing around his ears.

Even the rout of Thieu's armies in the north didn't shake Martin. He insisted that the South Vietnamese Army would dig in, hold the line and then throw the Communists back.

When the Saigon defenses also began to collapse, his advisers wanted to encourage the formation of a government that could negotiate a truce. This would permit the United States to bow out of Vietnam, they contended, with some degree of honor.

But the militant Martin called instead for President Thieu to form a stronger war cabinet and to stiffen the resistance against the Hanoi forces.

Even after Thieu fled the country with a parting blast at the United States, Martin thought there was time to negotiate an honorable settlement. He delayed the evacuation, therefore, to avoid throwing Saigon into chaos.

The Air Force officer in charge of the evacuation effort in Saigon, Brig. Gen. Richard Baughn, kept pressing to move Americans and their Vietnamese supporters out. In desperation, he began flying out Vietnamese employees without Martin's authorization.

The ambassador angrily demanded General Baughn's dismissal right in the middle of the evacuation preparations. A successor was rushed to Saigon to take over. But in the end, tens of thousands of Vietnamese, who had worked for the Americans and could have been saved, were left behind.

Jeffrey Hart

You are the editor of the New York Review of Books, one of the most influential intellectual organs in the country, but this morning you have one damnable problem.

Naturally, your journal has been supporting the Vietcong and the North Vietnamese and in fact revolutionaries everywhere for years. Tom Hayden and I.F. Stone and Noam Chomsky and that sort provide the lenses through which your readers view the world. At one point, you even put the diagram of a Molotov cocktail on the cover of your journal, in case any reader wished to transform the principles espoused therein into direct political action.

But those damnable refugees, streaming along the roads in Vietnam, terrified of falling under Communist control, those damnable refugees, pumped into every living room via the tube — that, irksomely, causes problems for your journal and its general position of support for liberators everywhere. As they used to put it in the Nixon Administration, all those refugees are a problem in "the PR dimension."

So, to try to get past this sticky wicket, you turn the whole can of worms over to Jean Lacouture, a Frenchman, and an old Vietnam hand who has written an admiring biography of Ho Chi Minh. And Jean, baby, does his best. It provides an instructive window into the mind of the international Left, and particularly its unique talent for anaesthetizing the conscience.

Opening techniques
Jean opens with the technique of the "pseudo question": "Why . . . has this dreadful and pathetic movement of refugees of the past few weeks taken place?" The idea, you see, is to turn what would ordinarily be explained in a common sense way into a "problem." The "problem" is, why in the world do these people desire not to live under Communism?

While his readers are scratching their heads over that one, Jean hits them with the hard fact. "About one-fifth of the inhabitants of the provinces that have come under PRG (Provisional Revolutionary Government) control — some 1.5 million refugees — have fled south." Yes, best to admit what cannot be denied, and then go to work on it.

Many of these, he assures the readers, are beneath consideration. "It is understandable that, among these, the urban bourgeoisie of Hue or Danang would want to escape from an administration that sooner or later will be hostile to them." Very delicately put, that "hostile to them." And, of course, this "urban bourgeoisie" is an object of scorn to the urban bourgeoisie that reads the New York Review of Books.

Still, that does not solve the whole problem, unfortunately. "But what about the large numbers of villagers who are in flight? What do they have to lose? And don't they stand to gain much from the kind of social justice the maquis have brought to the rural areas . . . ?"

One savors that "maquis." This is just the French Resistance all over again.

But why are those damnable villagers fleeing? Come on, Jean.

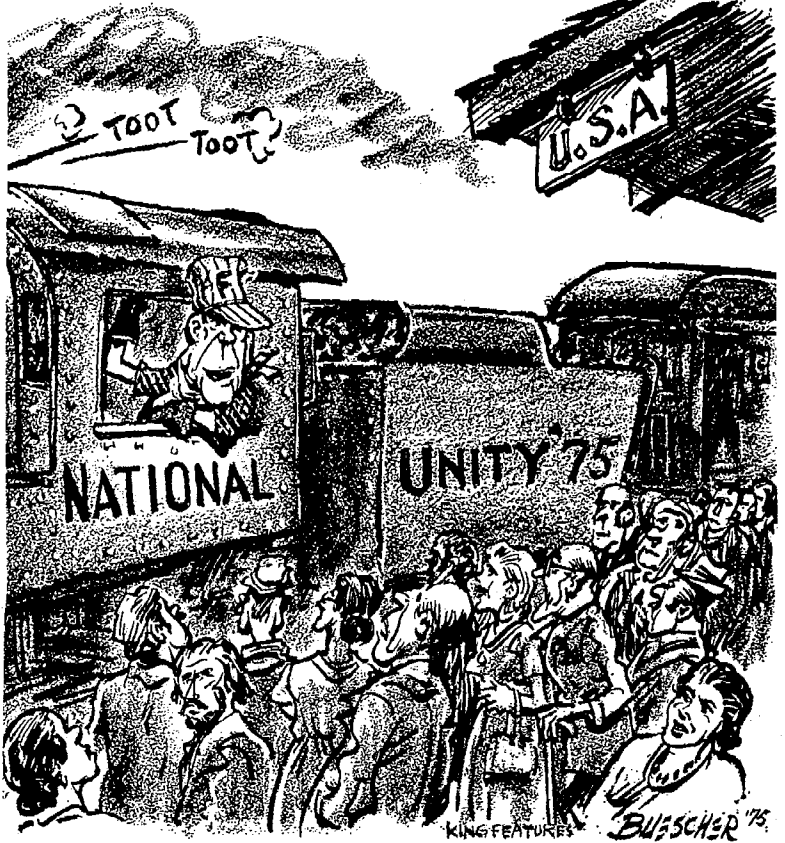

Many of them are government toadies. "Of the 1.5 million refugees, at least 300,000 people — military or civilian — are, in one way or another, agents of the government."

But, we at last come to it, alas, most of the refugees do fear the Communists. "There are those who have been formed by the kind of Catholicism which gave to Vietnam the Ngo family." Boo, hiss. There are those who "have a horror of adapting themselves to socialist disciplines." The lazy slackers.

Communists proposal
Fortunately, these poor clowns are "in the grip of mythologies," because what the Communists propose for the South is a "union of the Left," which, "in French terms, would have as center not the socialist Francois Mitterand, but someone like Edgar Faure." Thus those who are fleeing the victorious Communists have tended "to invent demons to justify their fear."

But one block remains to be filled in, now that the irksome refugee matter has been satisfactorily disposed of. Most readers of the New York Review do not want a Vietnamese Edgar Faure running things there. They want a Communist triumph. Good old Jean can manage there, too: "But it is certainly wrong to claim, as certain European sympathizers of the PRG tend to do, that the PRG and its army have little to do with communism, that they are a resistance movement as diverse as the one which fought the Nazis in occupied France. Such observations seem to assume that it is somehow criminal to be communist, to imply that there is some truth to be camouflaged . . ."

And so to bed with that conscience of the left intelligentsia, the New York Review of Books.

All aboard!

Enormous benefits to you of retirement accounts

(Last of two columns)

Sylvia Porter

There are enormous advantages to you — among the millions of us not covered by private pension plans — in being able to establish your own retirement account, make contributions to it that are tax deductible and then let the earnings in that account accumulate over the years tax-free.

The extent to which tax-free contributions build up when what they earn is also tax-free is truly spectacular. This is the heart of the Individual Retirement Accounts which you can establish under a revolutionary provision of the 1974 Pension Reform Act which went into effect this past Jan. 1, 1975.

But you'll miss all the benefits if you don't know what an IRA is and how to take advantage of it. And the sad probability is that those of you who need an IRA most are just the ones who will not be informed. Thus, my two-part quiz, prepared with the help of the 46-year-old New York-based investment advisory firm of Lord, Abbett & Co. Heed it well.

Q. When can you get distributions from your IRA?

A. Normally, not before you reach age 59½.

Q. How long can you keep your money in your IRA?

A. Distributions must start in the tax year in which you become 70½ and cannot be longer than a period measured either by your own life expectancy or the joint life expectancy of you and your spouse.

Q. Can an IRA be established as a joint account?

A. No. An IRA is a retirement account for you, an individual. However, you can name your spouse as your beneficiary.

Q. Can a husband and wife each establish an IRA?

A. Yes, if both of you receive compensation. In community property states, each of you must receive compensation on your own behalf. A wife will not be eligible to establish an IRA merely because her husband is receiving compensation.

Q. Can self-employed individuals establish an IRA?

A. Yes. If you, a self-employed person, do not establish a Keogh plan, you may establish an IRA covering just yourself. You do not have to cover any employees you have. You can, however, contribute for selected employees at your discretion and your contributions are deductible.

Q. Can you contribute to an IRA if your employer contributes less than 15 per cent of your compensation to a profit-sharing plan or pension plan?

A. No.

Q. How are contributions deducted?

A. Contributions are deducted from your gross income in filing your federal income tax return. You can get a deduction for contributions to an IRA whether or not you itemize your other deductions and you can still take the optional standard deduction.

Q. How are earnings on your IRA taxed?

A. The earnings on your investment — dividends, capital gains, etc. — are not subject to federal income tax while they are accumulating in your IRA account. All taxation of this money is deferred until distributions are made to you.

Q. Can you contribute mutual fund shares to your IRA?

A. No. All your contributions must be in cash.

Q. Can you withdraw your money if you become disabled?

A. Yes. Disability is defined as a medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or to be of long, continued and indefinite duration preventing you from engaging in any substantial, gainful activity.

Q. What if you're not disabled but withdraw before 59½?

A. You are subject to tax penalties. The amount of your premature withdrawal is included in your gross income for that year. In addition, there is a penalty tax of 10 per cent of the amount.

Q. What if you withdraw over a longer period than the life expectancy tables provide?

A. The Internal Revenue Service imposes a penalty of 50 per cent of the underwithdrawing. Thus, if you should be withdrawing at the rate of $2,100 a year but you withdraw only $1,300, the difference of $700 would be subject to a 50 per cent tax of $350.

Q. Where can you get more information?

A. From the Internal Revenue Service, mutual funds, savings banks, savings and loan associations, stockbrokers, insurance companies, commercial banks setting up plans, even more. You'll find plenty of sources. Use them for your maximum benefit.

Occupation tax: Another victim won't pay the levy

Editor, The Record:

We read with interest your article on Mrs. Mary Nagle's refusal to pay the $6 occupational tax levied by the Pleasant Valley School District.

I hope she and all housewives refuse to pay it. What the school board needs is a good course in business sense. Where is the proof she collected $60 a month from her husband for her services? Does she have the canceled checks?

If she pays this tax, she is also liable for federal Social Security taxes and perhaps unemployment and disability taxes. That is the law!

Did you know the Internal Revenue Service confiscated and sold a man's $50,000 tractor-trailer because he failed to collect Social Security taxes from men who helped him unload his truck from time to time? He paid them $10 to $20 depending on how much help he needed and each time it was different men. They told him he was supposed to keep records and file tax returns on each individual.

The tax is ridiculous.

Tough traffic

Editor, The Record:

I would like to call to your attention the Friday afternoon traffic situation at the intersection of Prospect and Ridgeway Streets which heads the front of East Stroudsburg State College.

On a typical Friday afternoon between the hours of noon and 4 p.m., there exists complete chaos at this intersection as the mass exodus of students leave ESSC for the weekend. Crossing the street at this time can be perilous, whether you're a pedestrian or in a motor vehicle. It becomes a rather dangerous dodging game of chicken.

A solution to the problem might be resolved with a traffic light or a crossing guard at peak hours.

Soviet space center opened to newsmen

KALININGRAD, USSR (UPI) — The Soviet Union opened another chink in the wall of secrecy surrounding its space program Monday by allowing Western newsmen to visit a space flight control center for the first time.

The center — a walled and fortress-like building set amid ramshackle log houses in this Moscow suburb — will be used to track the Soviet-American joint space flight in July.

Nine American experts, with open telephone, telex and data links to Houston, are working at the center. They will take part in a 24-hour dress rehearsal of the July mission scheduled to begin at 8:20 A.M. EDT today.

Stans sentencing scheduled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, who was Richard M. Nixon's chief political fundraiser in 1968 and 1972, will be sentenced Wednesday on a five-count campaign-finance misdemeanor, a court spokesman said Monday.

Stans, who pleaded guilty March 12, will be sentenced by U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith.

Watergate prosecutors said each of the five counts carries a maximum $1,000 fine and one year in prison.

Stans pleaded guilty to: —Failing to register details of a $30,000 contribution from former Philippine Ambassador Ernesto Lagdameo on June 29, 1972.

—Failing to register the details of a $81,000 allocation to Fred C. LaRue, a Nixon reelection aide, made in 1972 between June 27 and July 4.

—Failing to register the details of a $99,000 contribution received from former Montana Gov. Tim Babcock between Nov. 3, 1972, and Jan. 17, 1973.

—Receiving a $40,000 contribution in illegal corporate funds from Goodyear Tire and Rubber between March 9 and 13, 1972.

—Receiving a $30,000 contribution in illegal corporate funds from the 3M company on March 26, 1972.

Pennsy slows borrowing pace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Penn Central Railroad probably will not have to come back to Congress for more money before a new government-planned corporation takes over early next year, one of the railroad's bankruptcy trustees said Monday.

Robert Blanchette told a House Transportation subcommittee that unless a natural disaster such as hurricane-spawned flooding hits his railroad, Congress has authorized enough money to maintain operations through the first quarter of next year.

It is in the first quarter of 1976 that the Consolidated Railroad Corporation — ConRail — will take over operation of almost all the bankrupt railroads of the Northeast and Midwest.

Blanchette said his estimate took into account the falloff of traffic due to the recession, but assumed that the recession would get no worse.

Congress recently authorized $347 million for the bankrupt railroads. Not all of it has been appropriated, however.

Blanchette was testifying on the U.S. Railway Association's preliminary plan for restructuring the bankrupt railroads.

He said the government should allow ConRail to take over the bankrupt lines and begin upgrading them before considering any selloff of the lines to solvent carriers.

"We share your mistrust," he told subcommittee chairman Fred Rooney, D-Pa., "at the unraveling of a complex bit of architecture that Congress put together last year."

Blanchette was referring to reports that many high officials in the administration would prefer "controlled liquidation" of the bankrupt lines rather than the ConRail approach which would merge all the bankrupts into one railroad.

Some folks never learn

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — One of these days, Robert Brennan is going to learn that you don't give the police a hard time.

Even if you're a policeman yourself.

Brennan, 32, a city policeman, is in trouble for the second time for threatening police officers investigating accidents in which he was involved while off duty.

He first collided with a truck last November.

The investigating officer testified that Brennan "told me he'd take me down to the gym and wipe the floor up with me."

Brennan was exonerated by a police trial board, but the police superintendent recommended that another trial board be convened.

Then Brennan ran into the rear of a truck last month.

Police reports said he was "very loud and disorderly" toward police officers at the scene.

Brennan now faces another trial board hearing on departmental charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, failure to render respect to fellow policemen and the use of "violent, profane and insolent language."

High water

The surface of the Great Salt Lake covers 1,500 square miles and is higher than the average elevation of the Allegheny Mountains.

Cut this out and save it. It could save you some money this summer.

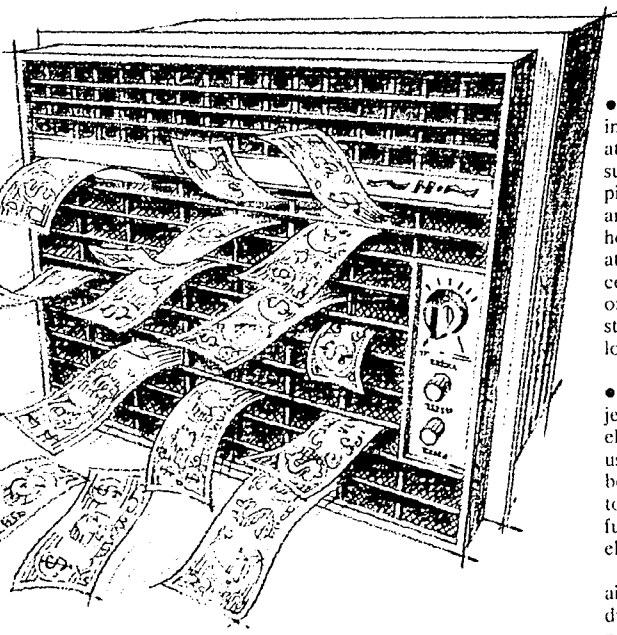

Wise buyer tips from Met-Ed

If you think you need an air conditioner, here are some ideas that could help you keep cool ... and save money, too!

- First decide whether you really need an air conditioner. You may be able to keep your home cool without the expense of an air conditioner by pulling your drapes closed on sunny days; adding some well-placed fans; making sure you have adequate insulation; and waiting until the cooler evening hours to do those heat and moisture producing activities, such as, clothes washing, drying, dish washing and baking.

If, however, you still think you need one, then here are some helpful ideas on how to buy and use an air conditioner wisely.

- Some air conditioners use more electricity than others, even though they have the same cooling capacity. To make sure you are buying one that will keep your operating costs to a minimum, check out the Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER) of the unit. The EER may be printed on the air conditioner or the manufacturer's literature; if it isn't there, ask your dealer.

The higher the EER number, the better. An EER of at least 7.5 is recommended; 8 or 9 is better yet, and 10 or more is excellent. In fact, an air conditioner with an EER of 10 uses about 40% less electricity to do the same cooling job as one with an EER of 6.

- Be certain the air conditioner is the right size for the cooling job you want it to do. This can be determined by your dealer once he knows certain information, such as the size of the space to be cooled, the number and size of windows and outside doors, and the type of wall and ceiling construction, etc.

For your own estimating purposes, figure 25 BTU's per square foot of floor space.

- After your air conditioner is installed be sure to keep it set at 78°; close your drapes on sunny days; check weather stripping around doors and windows, and most of all be certain your home is insulated properly with at least 6" of insulation in the ceiling. The money you spend on insulation and weather stripping will pay for itself in lower energy bills over the years.

- And while we are on the subject of money, there's something else you should know. The wise use of your air conditioner can be an important factor in helping to minimize the size of any future increases in the cost of electricity.

Try to keep the use of your air conditioner to a minimum during the peak 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. period when the cost of producing electricity is relatively high.

"It will pay to wait until eight!"

Will Pocono residents recognize excellence?

Most of the people in the Poconos missed an expert musical performance Saturday night.

As the first in a series of concerts planned by the Pocono Wind Symphony to mark America's bicentennial celebration in Monroe County, the Rutgers University Wind Ensemble gave a brilliant example of what a "band" can accomplish musically.

Unfortunately, only a handful of local music lovers were available to appreciate the program.

The Rutgers ensemble played four selections and an encore of music written especially for concert bands. Mood in the selections varied from stridently military to avant garde to profoundly melancholy.

The Rutgers ensemble executed each adroitly and with evocative skill. The band's determination to do more than justice to each piece of music was evidenced in its minute attention to detail.

For instance, the band brought a harpist all the way from New Jersey for only a few moments of performance. And the group brought a piece of the railroad — a large piece of heavy metal — to pound in place of an anvil in a movement entitled "Song of the Blacksmith," part of a larger work.

The band's performance brought the small audience to its feet with applause. Rousing military selections had the listeners tapping their feet in rhythm — and almost clapping their hands in time.

Listeners socialized with performers at an informal reception following the concert and compliments flowed with the coffee and tea.

Much of the audience wondered where everyone else was. After all, the Poconos boast a multitude of school bands, several music study clubs and its own wind symphony — all of whom profess a knowledge of good music and often seek publicity and audience support for their own performances.

Most of the organizations also claim to perform an educative function. Here were expert performers coming to the Poconos to exhibit their skills — no need for a trek to New York or Philadelphia. The price of $6.50 for adults, $4.50 for students might have been steep — but no steeper than New York or Philadelphia.

The concert was even held in the interest of the bicentennial, America's birthday extravaganza.

The Poconos will get a second chance at this branch of culture.

The Cornell University Wind Ensemble will perform at 7 p.m., May 31 outdoors at the Siwananda Conservatory of Yoga One Science, Readers, in the second concert of the series.

Readers is on the map.

Consumer can bust trusts

Dow Jones-Ottaway News
WASHINGTON — At the suggestion of consumer advocate Ralph Nader, the Justice Department is putting out a consumer guide to trust-busting.

The 10-page pamphlet basically describes in plain language antitrust laws and how they are enforced. It says that although many consumers "have never heard of antitrust laws," such laws, when effectively enforced, "can save consumers millions and perhaps billions of dollars a year in illegal overcharges."

The Justice Department booklet also describes common antitrust violations. The "most unusual" violation, it says, is price fixing, which is described as occurring "when two or more sellers conspire to get together and agree they will increase prices a certain amount, or that they won't sell below a certain price."

But the pamphlet warns that antitrust conspiracies "are the most difficult kind of conspiracies to find." It suggests that citizen trustbusters "keep an eye out for telltale signs," such as:

— If there are large and equal price changes involving more than one seller of highly similar products.

— If competing sellers have identical pricing of the same or similar products.

Nutritional labeling is a new kind of labeling designed to help consumers know and understand the nutritional contributions of the food they buy. By using nutritional labeling, consumers can do a better job of buying and serving nutritious foods. Nutritional labeling is designed to help you provide nutritious foods at moderate costs. To do this, you

Energy efficiency house criterion

By Metropolitan Edison's Home Economist

If you are planning to build or purchase a new house or put an addition on your present home be sure you specify one that is energy efficient. An energy efficient structure is not difficult to build, and with fuel costs continuing to increase, the energy saved will soon pay for the nominal additional cost. There are several design and construction techniques you should consider and-or check out with the builder.

The fewer or the smaller the windows and doors the lower the heating and cooling costs. Window areas should be less than twenty per cent of the total outside wall area and have double insulating glass or storm windows and doors.

One of the very best ways to save energy and money is to have adequate insulation. Insulation slows down the flow of heat, keeping it in or out of the house, depending on the season. It takes more than twice as much energy to heat an uninsulated house then it does to heat a well insulated house.

To be sure the house has the right amount of insulation in the walls, ceilings and floors find out the R-Value of the insulation. The R-Value indicates the ability of the insulating material to keep heat from passing through it. The higher the R-Value, the more heat the insulation will keep inside in winter and outside in summer.

It is also important to have the correct sizing of heating and cooling equipment. Equipment that is too small will not adequately heat or cool your home. Oversized equipment will operate in short, inefficient spurts and waste energy. Heating and cooling ducts in unconditioned areas should be insulated.

Water heaters should be located near the major use areas and have adequate storage capacity. Hot water pipes should be insulated to cut down on heat loss.

Fluorescent lamps produce three times more light per watt and have a longer life than incandescent light bulbs.

The refrigerator should be located in the coolest spot in the kitchen, away from heat producing appliances.

Biologist to speak

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dr. Larry Rymon, biology professor at East Stroudsburg State College, will be guest speaker at the May 15 meeting of the Monroe County Garden Club.

The topic of his talk will be "Free Flowing Rivers." The meeting begins at 2 p.m. at the East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church. Members are asked to bring arrangements on the theme, "Recycling to aid the environment."

The Japanese flower workshop scheduled for 9 a.m. Thursday is canceled.

The public is invited to Thursday's meeting. The club is interested in obtaining new members of both sexes.

Nutritional labeling explained need to understand nutrition labels and know how to use them.

Nutritional labeling is voluntary. However, as of July 1, 1975, any product that crosses state lines and makes any nutritional claim on the label or in advertising, or that has any nutrient added to the product must be covered by full nutritional labeling. The Food and Drug Administration is responsible for administering this regulation.

The label must give the serving size, the number of servings in the container, calories, carbohydrate, fat and protein content. Additional information will be given for protein, Vitamin A, Vitamin C, Thiamine (B1), Riboflavin (B2), Niacin, Calcium, and Iron found in a serving of the specified size of that food.

Fresh fruits, fresh vegetables and meats generally will not have nutritional labeling. Nutrient makeup of these fresh foods depends on variety, freshness, and conditions of handling.

In utilizing the nutritional labeling, the size serving is the key to interpretation. By dividing the cost of the food package by the number of servings it contains, you can easily compare costs per serving of different sized packages and brands.

The number of calories in a serving is a result of actual analysis. The manufacturer must be able to verify all information. Because people are aware of calories and realize that lack of exercise and overconsumption of food and beverages leads to weight gain, calorie information is very valuable.

Calories are provided by the three nutrients protein, carbohydrate and fat.

Underneath this information is the percentage of U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S. RDA). The RDA are the levels of intake of essential nutrients considered to be adequate to meet the known nutritional needs of practically all healthy persons. RDA are specific for persons of different ages and sex.

Sometimes additional information may be included. This may be kind of fat, cholesterol content, sodium content, other vitamins and minerals. But this extra information is not required although it can be very helpful to someone on a specific diet.

If you haven't been observing nutritional labeling, you should begin to.

Nutrition Information (Per serving)		Percentage of U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances (U. S. RDA)

Florence Scholla honored

STROUDSBURG — Florence E. Scholla was honored Monday for her 39 years of service to the Monroe County Public Library.

Both the library board of directors and the Women's Club of the Stroudsburgs, of which Mrs. Scholla is past president and member, gave a surprised Mrs. Scholla tokens of their appreciation for her community service at the final meeting of the woman's club for the year.

Jesse Pierson, vice chairman of the library board, presented an inscribed plaque from the library to Mrs. Scholla at the club's Oriental Brunch. The plaque will hang in the library.

In a brief history of the library, he outlined Mrs. Scholla's contributions to the institution.

The library opened for the Stroudsburgs in 1916 under the sponsorship of the Women's Club. The library was housed in the Stroud Community House, run by the club, beginning in 1920.

Mrs. Scholla became chairman of the library board in 1936, after a three-year term of office as president of the Women's Club expired. During that term, she had learned that the board had difficulty enlisting a permanent chairman.

Mrs. Scholla has been chairman of the board until 1966; she remained on the board until this year when she tendered her resignation.

During that time, the library has undergone numerous changes. It expanded to a county library in 1937. A bookmobile and children's library have been added. The library has moved to the former Howard L. Keiper home, 913 Main St., Stroudsburg and now encompasses the entire home.

Relatives and friends of Mrs. Scholla gave plaudits to the honored community servant.

Grace Hess presented an inscribed pendant to Mrs. Scholla from the Women's Club.

Mrs. Scholla's few comments were restricted to her feelings of surprise. "I'm overwhelmed," she said succinctly.

Miss PV set for festival

WELLSBORO — Judy Neill, a Pleasant Valley High School senior, has been chosen by her classmates to represent the school as Miss Pleasant Valley in the 34th annual Pennsylvania State Laurel Festival.

The festival will be held in Wellsboro, June 20, 21, and 22. Miss Neill is the daughter of Warren R. and Florence E. Neill of Kunkletown.

Although Miss Neill works after school in her parent's business, she has found time to participate in the school chorus and in the library club winning the library club award. She was also awarded a Seventeen beauty workshop diploma. Her hobbies include swimming, skating, bowling, dancing, and bike riding.

After graduation, she plans to attend a business college.

Among the activities planned for Miss Neill and the other visiting queens are the welcoming ceremonies on June 20th, a tour of the Pennsylvania Grand Canyon in the afternoon, and the queen's preview in the evening at the Wellsboro Senior High.

Home ec teachers learn consumerism

HERSHEY — Mary E.

Hall and Frances Feltham, home economics teachers at Stroudsburg High School, joined 600 home economists from across Pennsylvania for the 52nd annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Home Economics Association held April 24-26 at Hershey.

The theme of the meeting was "Impact, React, Act" and the three day conference offered members the challenge to learn what has impact in their lives, ways in which to react and how to act to get results and help shape change.

Keynote address was presented by Hazel Henderson, writer and lecturer on economic, social and environmental issues. Mrs. Henderson's address was titled, "The Decline of Joneism," and dealt with the state of the economy and its impact on families as well as the possible reactions and actions which may be appropriate for home economists. She discussed particularly, the concept of "de-marketing" — that is, persuading customers not to buy products.

Saturday's program was highlighted by the Honorable Barbara Hackman Franklin, Commissioner of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

TANNERSVILLE — "Dried Flowers" will be the theme for the program presented by Mrs. Anne Wojacek at the May 13 meeting of the Pocono Garden Club at the Pocono Township Fire Hall, Tannersville. The meeting begins at 2 p.m.

NEW YORK — Caesars Palace-insiders whispered to us that tennis champ Jimmy Connors' mentor Bill Riordan put his money where his managerial mouth was when Jim won the $500,000 bonanza — and hit a smaller six-figure take-home. Does Jimmy get a client's cut? ... Penn. Gov. Milton Shapp suddenly has something in common with Irving Berlin, Igor Stravinsky, the late Sen. Everett Dirksen, Cong. James Symington, FDR's first Treasury Secretary, William Woodin, P.G. Wodehouse, Stevie Wonder, Red Skelton, Coolidge's Veep Charles G. Dawes, John Ringling North, Kyle Rote, Erich Segal, Phil Silvers. Irving Berlin is the tipoff: they've all written songs and they're all members of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers; Gov. Shapp becomes a member of ASCAP this weekend, a hardly exclusive club — 16,500 members — thereby proving again everybody has a song ... Coolidge's Veep Dawes' hit was "It's All in the Game," put to a Carl Sigman lyric decades after the gentleman otherwise famous for his underslung pipe composed it; it's a lovely tune.

Darryl Zanuck, nearing 73 and his towering creative gifts totally retired in Palm Springs, ironically notes the difference from the old days when he had H'wood power: he looked out at his empty croquet court where once everyone who could status-crowd in begged for invitations, and shrugged, "It's a front-runner's world. Let's face it — my power is gone."

Lionel Hampton, already a considerable Harlem realtor, has the seed money to start feasibility studies for a university in Harlem ... Richard Burton's health is worrying his friends, what are left ... The rock-musical film, "Tommy," hauls in an audience which fills the air with the other kind of cigaret smoke ... You Don't Have to be Jewish, Conf'd: the Borscht Circuit grand luxe resort, the Concord, for its Decoration Day (yes, yes, we know it's now called Memorial Day; we're just nostalgically looking back and turning into a pillar of patriotism) weekend signed Diahann Carroll, Peter Gennaro and his brilliant modern dancers and Vic Damone ... Lyricist Yip Harburg and double-Tony genius Geoffrey Holder (for "Wiz") are discussing reviving "Jamaica," with Harold Arlen music and Yip's words; it ran a tidy 555 performances in 1957 with Lena Horne and Ricardo Montalban starred.

Ric Montalban is turning up in TV commercials, a prosperous sideline for many actors; Ric got the jobs because his older brother Carlos couldn't take on any more at the moment. Carlos is an actor, Latin American columnist, fabulously-successful "voice over" for coffee (for which he's "El Exigente" the Demanding One) and TV-radio spokesman both in the U.S. and for virtually a monopoly of American products sold in Latin America. Carlos has been married to the "other Mary Healy" (not Mrs. Peter Lind Hayes) for some 35 years. When he met Mary, his name like so many Latins was Jesus Carlos Montalban. Mary agreed to marry him with the firm provision that he drop his first name: "I can't handle Jesus and Mary." Mary thus modestly and pragmatically solved facing a future otherwise of endless sacrilegious wisecracks. Mary Montalban is one of the wildest undiscovered wits around showbiz, impish, harmlessly impudent — tells it as it is.

Hadn't seen each other in a dozen years, mucho Mexican embrazos, etc. Bruno turned to us and beaming, said, "This guy was terrific to me when I first was around Hollywood 45 years ago. I used to sell him booze."

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — An excellent day in which to formulate long-range plans. Something which has seemed out of reach is closer than you may imagine.
TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Watch and wait before you engage in new undertakings, but do not hesitate where real advantages are obvious. A somewhat mild day, but tricky in spots.
GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — If you know you are on the right track, stay there; do not go off on tangents without good reason. Curb your innate tendency toward restlessness.
CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Financial matters now have an element of risk, so make your moves slowly and deliberately. Personal relationships, however, promise to be exceptionally congenial.
LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Perseverance, despite possible obstacles, will bring handsome rewards soon. Your business acumen should be highly stimulated.
VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — You may have to revise some views, revamp a pre-planned program if you are to attain the goals you desire. But do this efficiently and good results are certain.
LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — The position of Venus suggests that you stress your innate artistry and create those clever "twists" which make the difference between the so-so and top attainment.
SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — Benefits indicated if you are alert, but opportunities could be lost through indifference or tendencies toward extremism.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Though there is a favorable outlook, some not entirely successful operations may need an added "shot in the arm" — new methods, tightening up, new date.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Time is important, of course, but don't let the thought of it rush you into hasty moves, decisions. Confusion will reign if the guard is down.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — This should be a highly profitable day for those of you who capitalize on your innate imagination and originality. On the personal side, emotions may rise and fall, so maintain equilibrium and poise.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — You may have a tendency to be too impressionable now. Avoid becoming involved in ticklish situations which could disturb you later.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most versatile individuals in the entire spectrum of the zodiac. Governed by Venus, the planet of love and beauty, you are naturally endowed with the potentials to succeed at almost any of the arts but, in addition, you have a practical side which fits you for many other careers. Thus, if you do not take up painting, sculpture or music, at which you are particularly adept, as a career, you may follow one or the other avocationally.

The best approach, after winning the heart lead with the king, is to cash the Q-J of trumps — deliberately leaving one trump at large — and then play a club. If West takes the ace you have twelve tricks, so let's assume he lets you win the club in dummy with the queen.
Now you play the ace and another heart — hoping to find the suit divided 3-3. But on the ace East produces the jack, and on the five he goes into a brown study trying to decide whether to ruff or not.
Actually, it doesn't matter what he does at this point. Let's suppose he trumps the heart. In that case you play the seven from your hand. This leaves you with the queen of hearts and, with all the adverse trumps now out of circulation, you later discard a spade from dummy on your high heart and make the slam by ruffing a spade in dummy.
If East does not ruff the third round of hearts, you are on equally firm ground. You win with the queen, ruff the fourth round of hearts with the king of trumps, and in that way produce a twelfth trick.
East is powerless against this series of plays. He just sits there and takes his medicine.

Let's say you're in six diamonds and West leads the ten of hearts. How would you play the hand?

If you fail to treat the hand with the respect it deserves, you finish down one — assuming best defense. For example, if you win the heart, draw trumps and play a club to dummy, West following low, you sooner or later lose a spade and a heart and wind up apologizing to partner for hav-

Accepting counseling

Dear Ann Landers: You have often advised emotionally-troubled readers to seek the help of a psychiatrist or a professional counselor. I wonder how many people have failed to heed that advice because they fear the expense. Please tell them that most communities now offer professional counseling with payment schedules based on personal income.

Not long ago my wife and I were on the verge of a divorce although we loved each other deeply. Professional counseling for only $3 a week helped us solve our differences and save our marriage. (As our financial status improved, our fees were increased to $20 a week, but it was worth every penny.)

I hope you will print this letter so others who need counseling won't let the fear of financial burdens prevent them from straightening out their lives.

Making It In California
Dear Cal.: Thank you for providing me with another opportunity to suggest to my readers that they contact the National Association for Mental Health, the County Mental Health Societies, Family Service Assn., The YMCA, Catholic Charities, Salvation Army, and an organization called Recovery, Inc., which costs nothing and has chapters all over the U.S.A. Just look in your phone book, folks. I'm tired of hearing, "I can't afford $45 an hour for a psychiatrist." Very few people can — but there are plenty of alternatives.

When it comes to sex therapy clinics, that's another story. Stay out of the yellow pages. I wouldn't put my stamp of approval on more than 50 of the four or five thousand clinics now operating around the country. Choose a therapy clinic connected with a hospital or a university. Most of the others are phony.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 65-year old woman whose hair is naturally grey. It started to turn when I was in my mid-forties and I hated it. With the help of commercial compounds I have kept my hair a chestnut brown — the color it was most of my life.

I'm sick and tired of people coming up to me and saying, "Why don't you let your hair go grey? It would be just beautiful!" I could scream. Maybe THEY think grey hair is beautiful, but I think it would make me look 15 years older. (Some of the women who have suggested this are tinting their own hair.)

I have changed beauty shops three times in the last two years because the hairdressers have been after me to let my hair go "natural." I can't stand the nagging.

I tried twice to let the grey grow out and after three weeks I despised the way I looked. I felt like an old lady.

What I want to know is this: Am I being silly and stubborn? What should I say to people who try to tell me what to do with my hair?

Oregon Brownette
Dear Brownie: It's YOUR hair. The person to please is yourself. And this is what you should tell people if they come on too strong.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't want an essay on morality. Just a simple yes or no will do. If a woman finds out her husband is having an affair with a so-called good friend of hers, does she have the right to go out and do the same?

Sauce for the Goose
Dear Goose: What do you mean by "right"? Who gave HIM the right? Getting even is a poor motive for doing anything. The answer is no.

OCCUPATION TAX

Quinn wields the axe

Kudos to commissioners

Courthouse row

By Bob Groff

On many occasions in the past, this space has been devoted to criticism of the actions or inaction of the Monroe County Commissioners, past and present. Now is the time to praise the present board for their action last week in the dropping of the occupation tax on the county level.

In their unanimous decision to axe the tax, the commissioners proved to the taxpayers of this county they are capable of providing moral leadership and making just decisions.

Commissioner William F. Quinn can take much of the credit for the abolition of the tax.

Virtually from the day he took office and was faced with having to eventually go on record about the levy, he opposed it.

Traffic light conditions stated

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Area School Board reiterated its position against a traffic light on its Morey School property in a letter to Borough Manager Ralph Bender, Jr.

Board solicitor Samuel W. Newman wrote in a letter dated May 7 that the school board "would prefer that there be no traffic light" in front of Morey School.

However, Newman wrote, if the light at the intersection of Dreher Avenue and West Main Street is erected despite the board's objections, it would prefer to have the light located so it will not:

"a. interfere with the access of school buses to the Morey School by means of the driveway to the west of the school; b. create the impression that the driveway is in fact a thru street."

Newman noted he would present two alternative suggestions of PennDOT for the location of this light to the school board.

The borough council, when informed of the reasons for the school board's objections, said their reasoning was flimsy.

The group will officially adopt a name for the organization and will also decide whether or not to increase meetings to two a month.

A bag-lunch informal get-together will be held at 11:30 a.m. The official meeting will begin at 1 p.m. All residents in the West End are welcomed to attend the session.

The group will also be discussing the possibility of moving the meeting place to larger headquarters if the number of members continues to increase.

Wyckoff's Wyckoff Shopper

I HOPE the sun is a 'shining to welcome the day ... but if not, come to our new Plaza Shop Home Center where the sun is ALWAYS shining ... and, furthermore, we're having a picnic!!! Yep ... a picnic!!!! We're "picking a peck of perfect prices" ... on a bushel and a peck of beautiful buys"!! Like for instance ... a square California Redwood table with FOUR ... count 'em ... FOUR matching benches! Enough for all your kinfolk, I'll betcha! Best thing about it, outside of the fact they you buy now and you're all ready for summer ... is that you're "saving a bundle," in addition to the bushel and the peck. It's a $199.00 value at only $90.00 ... and that ain't hay, that's cold cash you're saving!! Then ... match it up to the four piece grouping of redwood furniture. The two arm chairs and chaise lounge have floral print cushions, and there's a coffee table!!! Same price ... same savings ... ($199.00 value for $90.00!) ... same "happy-about-the-new-Wyckoff-Plaza-Shop-Home-Center" feeling!

Perhaps you'd prefer the sophisticated "town or country" lacy, white wrought iron grouping! Handsome ... nice-enough-to-go-INDOORS in a garden room or sunporch! Two club chairs, settee, and end table ... all with chip and scratch resistant finish, and comfortable reversible cushions! Forgive me if I sound like Monty Hall, but the Price IS Right!! It's a $170.70 value at $149.95 ... and a real "touch of class" for the porch, patio or poolside.

You're going to have such a ball looking around this new Plaza Shop Home Center that you'll want to take a "snack break!" No need to hide yourself away!! Tucked "smack dab" in the Plaza Courtyard corner is the Snack Shack!! How about that!! We think you'll be tickled about this fast food service that will give you more time to browse, shop, or just enjoy the progress along with all of us who've dreamed about this Home Center for more years than we dare think. The fact that it is now a reality, and that today and tomorrow we are "previewing it" with VERY special prices on some VERY special items ... well, it only adds to the excitement that awaits YOU ... at the New Plaza Shop Home Center at Wyckoff's in Stroudsburg !!!

Gap; Paul Nauman, Cresco; Jesse Pierson, Stroudsburg; William Quinn, Pocono Lake; and Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis, East Stroudsburg R.D. 3.

The first question asked was: Considering the need for expansion and renovation of Pleasant Valley Manor, what course of action would you pursue?

Answers by Democrats were:

— Davies — The sale may be the answer to problems of funding for the county but the manner in which the sale was consummated is the questionable part. I would have given the people more information and a choice of selling the manor. The construction bids should have been advertised bids instead of negotiated.

— Dadds — I now favor selling the manor. Originally I opposed it because of the bonds involved. I felt the taxpayers needed the $3 million more than the Banks or investors. Now that the Comprehensive Health Planning Board has required the commissioners to save this $3 million, I have no objection to the sale.

— Martin — I favor selling the manor to a non-profit organization.

School meeting

SWIFTWATER — The Board of Directors of the Pocono Mountain School District will meet in regular session on Wednesday, May 14 in the board room of the District Administration Office in Swiftwater. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m.

— Pipher — The financing of the expansion must be done by long-term financing. The transfer for state reimbursement is a legal question that will have to be decided by the court.

— Popkin — I believe we should use federal revenue sharing funds. We should maintain control of PVM so that our elderly who may need to take advantage of this facility will be assured of a county home.

— Williams — Cut the fat out of county government. Appraise the track record of revenue sharing and compare it with other grants. Whatever is done should be done with the interest of the senior citizens uppermost in mind while still considering the taxpayers.

Answers by the Republicans were:

— Higgins — Secure Health, Education and Welfare funding under the Hill-Burton Act available at 75-90 per cent funding. Replace the architect

For The Record

County Commissioner Arlington Martin was inadvertently omitted from a list of Democratic commissioner candidates which appeared in Monday's Record as having attended a Democratic rally Saturday at Mt. Airy Lodge.

In a photo caption in Monday's Record, Emery Mark Lord, 21, of East Stroudsburg R.D. 2 was incorrectly identified as Eric Mark Gordon. He was injured in a motor vehicle mishap Saturday afternoon.

and secure honest, competitive construction contracts, thus eliminating a $15 million county debt.

— Nauman — I feel that the manor project, if properly handled, could have been supported by a short-term tax millage. I would rather be taxed for a few years rather than 30 years.

— Pierson — The present commissioners misjudged the attitude of our citizens when they felt the total cost did not matter so long as it was not paid by county taxes. The ideal arrangement would permit the county to exercise control of the manor while participating in the state's share of repayment of costs.

— Quinn — I support selling the manor to a non-profit corporation.

— Shukaitis — I support the original plan of federal revenue sharing funds, capital reserve account and tax millage or municipal bonds.

Challengers for P.V. board rip school occupation tax

By JEFF WIDMER

POCONO RECORD REPORTER
BRODHEADSVILLE — Three of five candidates for seats on the Pleasant Valley School Board Monday said they favor scrapping the district's controversial occupation tax for a two per cent increase in the one per cent earned income tax.

Candidates made their remarks during a candidates' night sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Monroe County, which was held at the Pleasant Valley High School.

Frank J. Wernet, Frank Sulcoski and Leon C. Zinkler, school board candidates, agreed an occupation tax that groups people of differing incomes into one tax category is unfair.

Although candidates agreed the tax is unfair, all cautioned that raising property taxes to compensate was not the answer.

Eliminating the tax, which nets Pleasant Valley about $80,000 a year, would mean an increase in real estate tax of four mills, commented district Superintendent John Nye. (At the moment, only Pleasant Valley and Stroudsburg School Districts levy the occupation tax).

Pocono Mountain School District does not need the occupation tax, said Wernet. "You must take into consideration the majority of that tax does come from those resorts" in the Pocono Mountain district, he said. "If we want to have the type of education on the par with the Pocono Mountain School District, the money has to come from somewhere."

"I don't like the occupation tax because I believe in graduated taxes," commented Zinkler. "I am willing to pay more taxes, providing I know my tax money is being used to improve the educational climate...."

"I guess it's a necessary evil," said Sulcoski.

During the opening address, Wernet said he is an active Jaycee, versed in leadership and promised to listen to district residents' problems.

Sulcoski said board members should "keep in mind that good judgment and discipline play an important role in education. We should encourage both."

Zinkler said teaching in public schools for two and one-half years and teaching at East Stroudsburg State College for the past six years qualifies him for the post. "I am concerned about the education my kids get. I do not think I have all the answers. I think to be a school director you have to learn to listen before you talk."

Although he was not present, incumbent board member John A. Rinker, in a statement read by Nye, said he has served for 10 years, seven as board president.

"There is a growing alarm over the cancerous immorality gnawing at our society. It appears our legislative bodies pass laws which tend to abet and not deter disruptive elements in our society today. In closing I would like to see that teachers be allowed and encouraged to moralize to their students to assist them to attain the honorable and righteous ways of life," he said.

Incumbent Raymond Andrews was also not present.

All five candidates running for three positions on the board crossfiled.

Residents agree to firewall

S-burg housing code rebels yield

By HARRIET LEEDS

POCONO RECORD REPORTER
STROUDSBURG — A pair of Stroudsburg brothers who last month pushed the borough council into an investigation of fairness in building codes enforcement yielded to the law Friday and constructed a required firewall in the attic of their double home on Fetherman Street.

The brothers, William and Graydon Bolcar of 15 and 17 Fetherman St., Friday took out a permit to build the firewall. They completed construction over the weekend and called to have codes officer Stanley Melvin inspect it Monday.

The brothers thus met the 30-day deadline for compliance given them in April by the borough council. If the work had not been done by May 15, the brothers would have been subject to legal action.

The firewall completion ends a nine-month controversy that spurred the borough council to consider changes in enforcement of the three-year-old codes.

After a stormy council meeting last month, council president Chester Gross appointed a committee to review the codes.

This committee met twice and reported to council at its May 7 meeting some suggestions for changing the code. One suggestion was to extend the period of time allowed to make it easier for people to comply. The suggestion was to change it from 60 to 90 days.

A second suggestion involved doing away with permit fees for residential construction required by housing inspectors. People doing voluntary improvements and additions would still be required to pay permit fees under this plan.

The main thrust of the suggestions, however, was to "promote better communications and harmony" between residents and the codes office.

Many residents had complained to their councilmen of harassment by the codes officer and the housing inspector.

When reached by phone Monday, Graydon Bolcar had "no comment" and denied having signed a permit request form.

Bolcar had publicly stated at an April 16 council meeting he would not comply with the order to erect a firewall.

His brother William's side of the two-family dwelling was inspected by housing inspector Walter Doyle Sept. 23, 1974. Looking across the open attic, Doyle cited both brothers for lacking the firewall.

Two 60-day extensions were granted, one November 19 and the other January 15, by Melvin. Then in March, the borough council stalled the matter when it postponed consideration of it to another meeting.

In April the final 30-day extension was granted.

William Bolcar could not be reached for comment.

Pike sited for senior center

MILFORD — Pike County will have its own Area Agency on the Aging (AAA) office shortly after a contract is signed this month between the Department of Public Welfare and the Tri-County AAA.

The contract will provide $227,000 in Title VI funds; $170,000 in federal funds; and $56,000 in matching and state and local funds.

Paul Sumner, executive director of the Tri County AAA for Wayne, Pike and Monroe Counties, informed members of the Pike County Health and Planning Coalition that until the AAA opens an office in Pike County additional services cannot be extended to the elderly.

The Title VI funds comprise 47 per cent of the Tri County AAA's total $500,000 budget for this year. However, Sumner explained the contract between the state welfare department and the agency must be signed before the money can be spent.

"I won't mention the target date for the opening of the Pike County office because there still might be a delay in signing the contract for one or two months," Sumner said.

Sumner informed the coalition members that there was no immediate need for a center in the county, noting that most of the services for elderly residents are currently provided by the county nutrition program.

When the office is established in Pike County, a director, secretary, case worker and one or two outreach workers will man the facility, Sumner said.

Shopping assistance, information referral service, telephone service and recreation activities will be offered.

Although an AAA office is definitely planned, Sumner said there are no immediate plans to increase the number of nutrition sites in the county this year.

Several months ago, county commissioners and other local officials requested more nutrition sites rather than an aging office.

Some members of the health coalition pointed out a need for nutrition sites in the central and southern parts of the county.

No quorum, no plan, no funds

Drug council budget short votes

By DEBORAH ENYEART

POCONO RECORD REPORTER
STROUDSBURG — For the lack of a quorum, the Tri-County Drug and Alcohol Abuse Program's (D & A) plan and budget wasn't approved.

And for the lack of budget approval Monday night, D & A may be without funds July 1.

The D & A council waited 35 minutes hoping that enough members of the volunteer organization would arrive to approve the $319,488 budget for the new fiscal year beginning July 1.

After the council approves the budget, it must be approved by the county commissioners of Monroe, Pike and Carbon counties.

D & A specialist Mike Nestor told the council the plan and budget usually takes three weeks to get approval from all the commissioners.

The signed plan and budget must be submitted to the Governor's Council on Drug and Alcohol Abuse (GCDA) by June 30 at the latest, he said.

"The governor's council won't hear the budget without the commissioners' signatures," he said.

The council scheduled a special meeting for May 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the clinic.

"It's necessary to have a quorum for the next meeting. If people don't want to belong, they should say so and let someone on who wants to," said chairman Jim Colbert.

Nestor said the plan and budget had been on public display for two weeks but no one came into the clinic to look at it. No one inspected it last year either.

D & A is requesting $299,652 from GCDA and $19,836 in matching funds from the county. However, it expects GCDA to only allot $214,891.

In other discussions, D & A director Bruce Duvall told the council he anticipated a surplus of $10,000 to $20,000 in this year's budget.

He said he wasn't sure in which areas the surplus would be and added that the surplus could be closer to $10,000 if the program has to send a lot more people to rehabilitation.

Nestor said any unspent money would be returned "on paper only" and the difference would be deducted from next year's budget.

He said they could make changes with board approval if the new expenditures were not made between budget areas because the programs are set on pro-rate service costs.

Some of the suggested uses for the extra funds were some new furniture for the Carbon County office, furniture for Nestor's new office and films and projectors.

Monroe accepts new D&A chief

STROUDSBURG — The hiring of Stanley Goehring as program director of the Drug and Alcohol program for the Mental Health and Mental Retardation program was approved Monday by the Monroe County Commissioners.

Hiring of Goehring must also be approved by the commissioners of Carbon and Pike counties and by the state.

According to Thomas Foley, MHMR administrator, a D&A screening council interviewed six applicants for the position. The council approved Goehring at a special meeting May 1.

Goehring's salary is dependent on what classification the state assigns him under the civil service program. He is to replace Dr. Bruce Duvall.

In related MHMR matters, Foley asked the commissioners if he could use unencumbered state funds to pay for interim care placements under the program.

Foley explained that the state pays $11 a day for the nine individuals in the interim care arrangement. That is not enough to cover expenses, Foley said, and estimated it will cost the three counties over $24,000 this year to make up the difference. Monroe County's share is about $11,800.

The commissioners tabled action until further details can be obtained from Foley.

In other matters, the commissioners said the Redevelopment Authority has requested two workers under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA). The county recently received verbal confirmation that it is to receive about $36,000 to hire workers. The Pocono Wild Animal Farm and Visiting Nurses Association have also requested workers.

The commissioners approved purchase of 1,000 square feet of tile for the First Ward Community Building from S&S Lumber in Swiftwater for $393.

Monroe park board prepares for summer

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Recreation and Park Commission is gathering equipment and personnel in preparation for its summer season.

Summer staff appointments made at the commission meeting Monday were Michele Santagelo of East Stroudsburg R.D. 3, arts and crafts counselor and Joan Frailey of Stroud Township, program assistant.

The remainder of the summer appointments are to be made at the June meeting. These appointments will include the summer recreation director, program assistant, recreation aide, lifeguards, pool director and swim instructors.

Two of four positions on the Ad Hoc Citizen Committee for the First Ward Park were filled. Mrs. Janet Posten and Mrs. Alice Patterson were appointed.

Four positions are also available on an Ad Hoc Citizen Committee for the West End Park.

Applications for summer employment by the county have been drawn up, according to Jeffrey Evans, executive director. The commission will also serve as a clearinghouse for townships and others interested in hiring summer recreation personnel.

Equipment discussed at the meeting included soliciting prices for a lawn mower, lighting for basketball courts at both parks and for a slide projector.

The commission accepted a $415 quote from Pocono Pump and Pool for preparing the two county pools for opening day. The West End Park Pool is scheduled to open June 14. The First Ward Park Pool is scheduled to open June 16.

Chairman Elmer Kreger announced the dedication of a ball field at the West End Park as a memorial to Ronald Smith, who died two years ago. The dedication ceremony is set for 9 a.m. May 17.

Evans will send a letter to each of the municipalities receiving county recreation allocations through the commission regarding record keeping.

Provisions in the letter will state the funds must be used exclusively for the development of parks and recreation.

Since the source of the funds is federal revenue-sharing money given to Monroe County, funds can not be used as seed money to obtain more federal funds.

How the money was spent must be accounted for before an application for additional funding will be accepted or by Dec. 31, 1975.

Evans reported verbally on the Pennsylvania Recreation and Park Society Conference he attended last month and promised a written report on each workshop he attended.

Council member James Clancy suggested the petition because "this inaction is something that's got to stop. It's not a state problem. It's a federal problem to make a corridor between Interstates 80 and 84." Clancy said it is "the only way" to get trucks off Rte. 209.

In a related move, a letter will be sent by the council to Jacob Kassab, state Secretary of Transportation, urging that the transportation of modular homes on Rte. 209 be banned.

Safety council Chairman Raymond E. Davies Sr. suggested using yellow flashing lights at school bus stops to warn drivers on Rte. 209 to be cautious.

Davies said a transportation department estimate of a $4,100 cost was not right and that it probably was not understood what he had in mind.

Davies said portable, battery-operated flashers would do the job as well as something more expensive.

Council members also agreed to ask the county commissioners to appoint new members to the council since some members have not attended recent meetings.

Safety unit attacks 209 morass

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Safety Council Monday blasted the lack of appropriations for relocation of Rte. 209 and agreed to send a petition to Rep. Joe Evans, D-Tenn., chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Public Works.

Council member James Clancy suggested the petition because "this inaction is something that's got to stop. It's not a state problem. It's a federal problem to make a corridor between Interstates 80 and 84." Clancy said it is "the only way" to get trucks off Rte. 209.

Police blotter

Business ransacked

STROUDSBURG — A Bank Alley business was ransacked during the weekend, but police doubt anything was taken during the escape.

Laub Supply Co., formerly Lehigh Valley Supply, was entered through a broken window, according to borough police chief John Baujan. Two warehouse rooms were broken into and the office entered and ransacked.

Baujan said the break-in was discovered by store manager Chester Zukowski. Investigation is continuing, he said.

E-burg businesses burglarized

EAST STROUDSBURG — Four East Stroudsburg businesses were broken into Sunday night or early Monday morning with an undetermined amount of cash taken.

Borough police said Meyers Furniture Store's warehouse on Day Street was entered through a door window. An inventory of merchandise is now being taken.

Burglars broke windows to enter the Olympic Reconditioning Co. building on Eli Street. A soda and cigarette machine were broken into, with an undetermined amount of change taken. The Clean Time Laundromat on Prospect Street was broken into the same way, with the cigarette machine smashed open and money taken.

At the Norge Village Laundromat on North Courtland Street, burglars failed at trying to break into the building. A window was broken but entrance was not gained.

Robbery suspect

MILFORD — A Lake Ariel hotel owner is being sought in connection with the April 29 robbery of a Pike County bank.

State police at Milford have obtained a warrant for John Michael Buccì, a white male, 47 years old, five feet, 10 inches tall and weighing 275 pounds.

Buccì is charged with receiving stolen goods and criminal conspiracy, stemming from the theft of over $11,000 from the Wallenpaupack Branch of the First National Bank of Pike County in Paupack.

Kozlosky, Myers: Top ESSC athletes

By JOE DEVIVO
Record Sports Writer

MARSHALLS CREEK — Tom Kozlosky and Carol Myers shared the spotlight at East Stroudsburg State College's athletic awards banquet Monday night.

Kozlosky, who attained virtually every possible honor as a star linebacker for the Warriors, and Myers, a member of the United States field hockey team, were honored as ESSC's outstanding senior athletes at the Varsity 'S' Club's banquet at Mountain Lake House.

Monday night's recognition as ESSC's top football player and senior male athlete just added to the extensive list of post-season honors Kozlosky has earned.

Kozlosky's other achievements include selection to: Associated Press Little All-America third team; Associated Press All-Pennsylvania first team; New York Times' All-East first team; ECAC Division II All-East first team; and All-Pennsylvania Conference first team.

Kozlosky, who led the Warriors' defensive corps last fall with 182 tackles in 10 games, recently signed with the Eagles as a free agent.

Myers, a four-year letterwinner in field hockey, was named the school's outstanding field hockey player for the third straight year.

Myers, who is an elementary education student, also lettered in tennis.

Three local residents were among the group of 20 other athletes who received awards as the outstanding performers in their particular sport.

Bob Stetler of Stroudsburg, who starred in both soccer and wrestling and is now a member of the Tampa Bay Rowdies of the North American Soccer League, was chosen as the top soccer player.

Keith Wilson of Pen Argyl was named the Warriors' outstanding golfer. Wilson led the team with a 79 average and was fourth in Pennsylvania Conference competition.

Diane Groner of Wind Gap received an award as the top performer in women's track, one of three new sports at ESSC. Groner set school records for the 100 and 220 and finished fourth in the Maryland Invitational.

In the other two new women's sports, Lynn Dawson won the award as the top softball player while Jane Freund was named the outstanding player on the volleyball team.

Two freshmen, Chris Ip and Karen Linck, took honors as the top swimmers for the Warriors.

Lenny Jenkins, the Warriors' star trackman who won seven Pennsylvania Conference titles in his ESSC career, was selected as the top track athlete for the third time.

Janet Kemmerer was recognized as the Warriors' top archer for the fourth straight year.

Other winners included Mark Weber, cross country; Roy Wohl, basketball; Gary Kessel, wrestling; John Becker, men's gymnastics; Dave Wilson, baseball; Joel Lecker, archery; Preston Grubbs, tennis; Suzette Gosling, women's gymnastics; Marianne Herrity, women's basketball; Barb Heavy, lacrosse; and Tana Boyer, cheerleading.

Special Varsity 'S' awards were presented to Frank Pullo, ESSC's Director of Facilities; and Guy Nicolais of East Stroudsburg. Both men were presented with ESSC jackets and will become honorary members of the Varsity 'S' Club.

The Red Shirt award presented by the Warriors' football staff went to Billy Stowasser.

Wayne Hobbs was named the outstanding member of the Varsity 'S' Club.

Track and field world split by controversy, questions

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Parry O'Brien, one-time world record holder in the shot put, was somewhat reserved Monday in his praise of Brian Oldfield's 75-foot effort in an International Track Association meet at El Paso, Tex., Saturday.

"The first thing he's doing is fouling," O'Brien told a meeting of the Southern California Track Writers. "It's looks like he's pushing off the back of the ring with the ball of his foot. Maybe the rules are different in professional track. But no matter how you slice it, his 75 feet is farther than any other man has ever put the shot."

George Frenn, who has the best hammer throw mark in the United States this season, said his suit for a place on the American team that departed for China Monday ended in a compromise while the coaches of USC and UCLA agreed their teams should fight it out for the 1975 Pacific-8 Conference track championships this weekend at Pullman, Wash.

"I have to go to court to compete," Frenn said. "I obtained a writ to place me on the team, but I got them to admit that this team is not a national team."

"The AAU conceded I was the best hammer throw performer and was available."

Superior Court Judge Lawrence F. Mana of San Francisco ordered that the name of the team be changed from the United States National Team to "AAU 1975 China Tour Team from the United States of America."

The judge ruled that a national team must be selected on the basis of competition and the availability of athletes in the future.

By this action, we have prevented them (AAU) from defrauding the people," Frenn said. "Never again can an athlete who has qualified for a national team, including the Olympic team, be denied his right to compete."

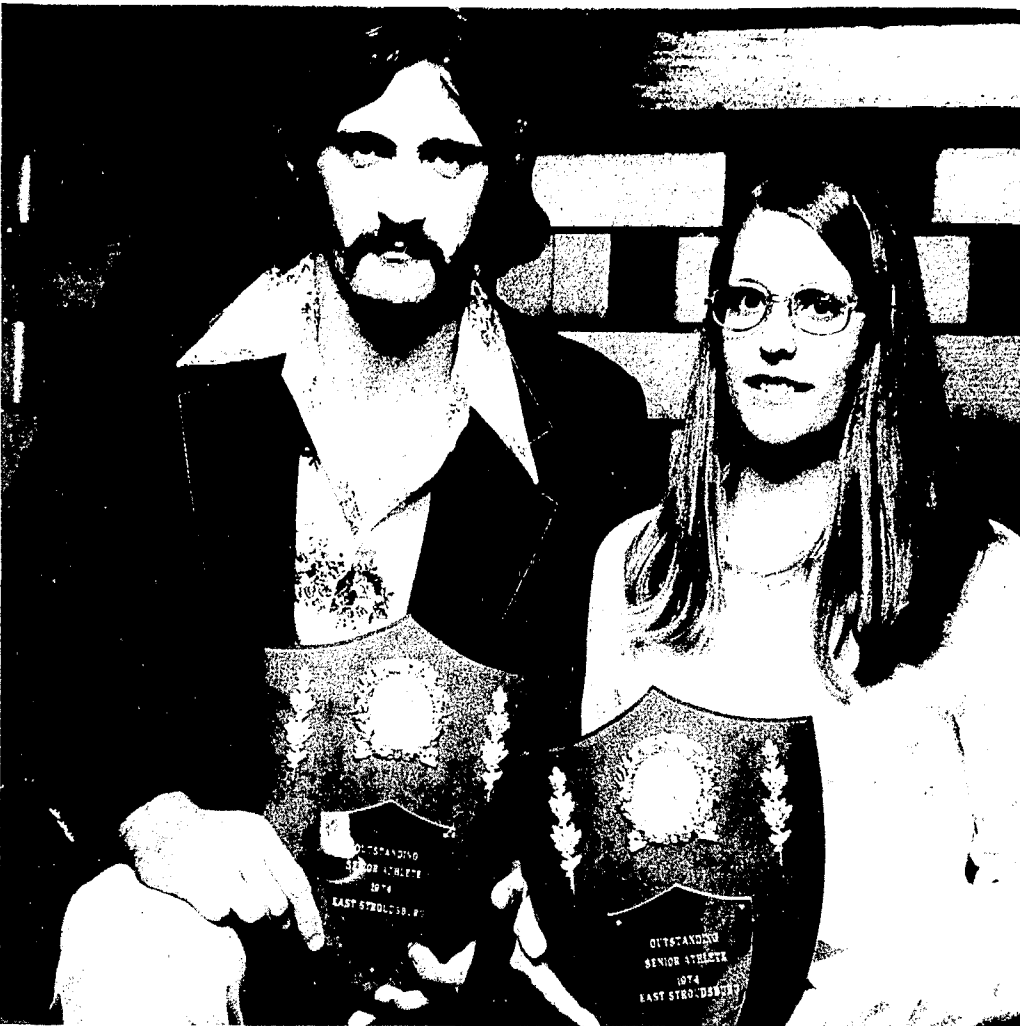

In a letter to AAU president Joseph Scalzo, Thomas C. Hansen, assistant executive director of the NCAA wrote in part:

"When the appropriate governing body takes a group of his best athletes, selected on the basis of performance to compete against other national teams abroad or against a foreign opponent in this country, it is a national team."

"On the basis of aforesaid application, the NCAA counsel has weighed the provisions of the above cited constitutional provision, on the theory that a national team from the United States is involved."

Doug Ford came in second with a 69 and Chuck Courtney, Gary Groh and Terry Diehl tied for third at 70.

Oklahoma native Orville Moody, winner of the 1969 U.S. Open and leader after the first nine holes Monday, finished five strokes off the pace at 74.

OUTSTANDING ATHLETES — Tom Kozlosky and Carol Myers were honored as East Stroudsburg State College's outstanding senior athletes Monday night at the school's annual athletic awards banquet at Mountain Lake House. Kozlosky was a defensive leader on the Warriors' football team, while Myers starred in field hockey. (Staff photo by Brian Heller)

Flyweight bout may change Torre hits clutch double to key Mets over Giants

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Torre smacked a three-run double in the seventh inning and Jon Matlack received credit for his third win Monday night to lead the New York Mets to a 3-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Torre's two-base hit came with two out off reliever Gary LaVelle who had replaced starter and loser Jim Barr earlier in the inning. Barr gave up 10 hits in 6 1-3 innings and left after Mike Phillips, Felix Millan and Del Unser loaded the bases with seventh-inning singles.

The left-handed LaVelle came in to strike out Rusty Staub, but Torre, who had committed two errors earlier in the game, lined the ball up the right center field alley to clear the bases.

The Giants had taken a 1-0 lead with an unearned run off Matlack in their half of the seventh. With one out, shortstop Phillips, whom the Mets acquired from the Giants on May 3, booted Ed Goodson's bouncer. Goodson went to third on Bruce Miller's single and scored on Dave Rader's short fly to center. Unser's throw to the plate was slightly wide, enabling the run to score.

Expos, 11-1

MONTREAL (UPI) — Rookie Pat Scanlon drilled his first major league homer, a three-run shot, and drove in four runs Monday night as the Montreal Expos beat the Atlanta Braves 11-1 behind the eight-hit pitching of Steve Rogers.

Rookie Gary Carter hit a solo homer in the second off former Expo Carl Morton who suffered his first loss against his one-time teammates after beating them six straight times over two seasons.

DETROIT (UPI) — Vern Ruhle and John Hiller shut out the Kansas Royals on nine hits and rookie Leon Roberts hit a three-run home run Monday night to power the Detroit Tigers to a 5-0 victory.

Ruhle increased his record to 2-1 but lost his first chance for a major league shutout when Manager Ralph Houk removed him after a single and a walk with one out in the eighth.

Hiller retired the last five hitters to close out the game. Kansas City had early chances but stranded seven runners in the first three innings and 15 in the game.

Roberts followed a walk to Nate Colbert and Bill Freehan's single with his third home run of the season, extending his hitting streak to all 14 games he has played in this season.

Following the contest, Houk said his performance Monday night was his last game in professional hockey, with the exception of one exhibition game in Houston next year before accepting a position as an Aero executive.

Howe opened the scoring early in the first period while his son Mark and Gordon Labossiere added goals later in the stanza.

Rejean Houle scored both Nordiques goals, one in each of

Cage clinic for girls

Some of this, some of that and whatever became of Pancho Herrera?

Camp St. Andrew girls' clinic

For many years, Camp St. Andrew in Tunkhannock (about 18 miles north of Scranton) has been staging highly successful boys' basketball clinics. Now the camp has announced it will begin a clinic for girls.

The clinic will be open to girls in the eighth to twelfth grades and will consist of intensive daily classes by resident and visiting coaches. Every phase of the game will be included.

Mary Ann Egnatovich, currently head girls' coach at Carbondale Area High School and a 1969 Health and Physical Education graduate of East Stroudsburg State College, will serve as clinic director for the first clinic, scheduled for June 15 to 20.

Her qualifications include six consecutive Lackawanna League girls' crowns and an overall coaching mark of 96-6. Her teams have also won three District 11 championships.

Assisting her will be Peg Garrick, another ESSC alumna. While at East Stroudsburg, she was a four-year starter and has since coached at Lakeland, where she is currently, and Bishop Klonowski in Scranton. Janet Kresge, also an ESSC alumna and currently a coach at Riverside, will also serve on the staff, as will Cheryl McDade, the current Klonowski coach.

Applications may be made by contacting Camp St. Andrew, 300 Wyoming Ave., Scranton. The camp is under the direction of the Diocese of Scranton.

Schroeder wins scholarship

Ron Schroeder, assistant golf superintendent at Shawnee, is a recent recipient of a Golf Course Superintendents Association of America (GCSAA) scholarship.

Schroeder, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. James Bostick of Shawnee, is an A-student and was awarded the scholarship for outstanding ability.

Silver All-Conference

Stroudsburg graduate Rick Silver, an outfielder for the Northampton Area County Community College baseball squad and one of its heaviest hitters, has been named to an all-conference berth in the Eastern Pennsylvania Community College Athletic Conference.

In recent games, Silver had two doubles and three runs-batted-in in a victory over Allentown College, three straight hits in a shutout over Delaware County Community College, three singles and two RBI in a triumph over the Lehigh JVs, a game-winning single against Lehigh County Community College, three RBI against Lehigh CCC and a pair of hits in a second game victory over Philadelphia CC.

Glen Brook women open season

STROUDSBURG — Ida Be-secker, president of the Glen Brook Women's Golf Assn., found plenty to do this wet and windy spring which delayed the start of golf. She made 72 favors for the women attending the opening luncheon Thursday: miniature golf bags, tees and cigarette-filter golf balls.

Lois Swisher was in charge of the luncheon, when many new members were welcomed. Bill Dimity, manager welcomed the women and Henri Reaser outlined the weekly Thursday tournaments for 18-holers while Alice Chura did the same for the nine-holers.

First tournament of the season will be Thursday with a criers tournament starting with a shot-gun start at 9 a.m. for 18 holes and 9:15 for nine holes.

Special events include a mixed scotch foursome and covered dish dinner for June 8; member-guest day for June 12; Invitational Day on July 10 and York Day on July 23. A handicap tournament will be held in July and the club championship rounds in August.

Members have been invited to Mountain Manor guest day on Tuesday, June 17, with a deadline of Saturday. Betty Bixler, outside tournament chairman, announced.

Other officers and chairmen reporting were: Jo Luze, vice president; Irene Rothstein, secretary; Lynn Talbot, treasurer; Alice Tunney, handicaps; Oriole Nitrauer, rules and by-laws; Bert Diehl, prizes; Mary Jane McCluskey, ringers; Joyce Manzie, chip-ins; Elaine Martin, scrap book and Helen Zaccaro, putts.

Industrial win

EAST STROUDSBURG — Terry Fisher slammed two home runs and knocked in six runs to lead U.S.W. Local 7946 to a 15-12 victory over Patterson Kelly in an Industrial League softball game. Rich Ludwig was the winning pitcher, while Bill Uhl took the loss.

Fires final round 65

Tom Watson scores two-stroke victory

DALLAS (UPI) — Young Tom Watson broke away from a group of tour lesser lights with a final round 65 Monday to capture the rain-delayed $175,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic by two shots, his second tour triumph in four years on the PGA circuit.

Watson was clustered in the midst of at least 10 golfers who had a chance at the title midway through the last round, but he rolled in four birdie putts on the back nine —the clincher being a 15-footer from off the fringe of the green at the watery, par-four 16th.

Watson's six-under final round left him with a 15-under 72 hole total of 269 over the Preston Trail Golf Club course, equaling the tournament record set last year by Buddy Allin.

The back nine surge by Watson, 25, ruined the hopes of Jack Ewing, who was in search of his first tour victory and who was tied for the lead as late as the 15th hole.

The victory was worth $35,000 to Watson, boosting his 1975 earnings to more than $94,000. His only tour victory before Monday came last July when he captured the Western Open.

Ewing, deadlocked at 14-under with Watson as he played the 16th, pushed his second shot to the right of the green and had to scramble for a bogey to drop out of the lead.

Ewingeventuallythree-putted the par-four 17th to fall into third place behind Bob E. Smith. Smith, who shot a final round 67, finished at 271 and picked up $19,950.

Ewing, despite his poor stretch drive, carted home $12,425 for his 12-under 272 finish —the best he has ever had in his eight-year tour career.

In fourth place came Rod Funseth, who shot a last round 70 and Larry Nelson who managed a 68. They each won $7,700. Bruce Crampton, who started the day tied with Funseth and Bob Eastwood, tied for sixth place with Dwight Nevil at 274.

Eastwood, Miller Barber and Mike Morley were another stroke back.

Watson started the day one shot behind the three leaders at nine-under-par and toured the front nine in two-under by picking up birdies at the par-five 3rd and par-four 5th.

As he started on the back side, Watson was deadlocked with Smith and a host of golfers were within two shots of the lead. But Watson quickly began to move away from that group with birdies on the short par-five 10th and a 10-foot birdie putt at the par-three 11th.

Watson missed a chance when an eight-foot birdie attempt at the 12th hole slid by, but he rolled in a 20-footer at the 13th to keep pace with Ewing, who by then had begun to roll in some birdie putts of his own.

Watson, who has now finished in the top 10 seven times this season, almost let things get away at the easy par-five 15th, missing the green with his third shot but saving par with a four-footer.

It was then he applied the clincher, coming up just short of the green on the teacherous par-four 16th, but rolling in the birdie putt that pushed him into an unsurmountable lead.

McKay: Scholarship cuts only way to save money

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "I would say you're going to see one-platoon football within two years and I haven't figured out why. It won't save any money."

John McKay, the brilliant head football coach at University of Southern California, could be described as a pragmatist's pragmatist and he doesn't care for what's happening to college football.

"I think college football is going to cut down on everything," he declared with the proper amount of disdain. "Football is the whipping boy of intercollegiate athletics."

"The only way you can save money in intercollegiate athletics, as far as I can see, is if you cut the number of scholarships allowed. That cuts out bodies and equipment and the number of people you can take on a trip."

At 51, McKay, who doubles as the Trojans' athletic director, has all the credentials to back him up. In 15 years at USC, he's won four national championships and has taken his Trojans to the Rose Bowl eight times. His record is 118-36-8.

But he says he's losing ground to the one-platoon advocates.

"I see no reason for it," said McKay, "but Darrell Royal and Texas have been beaten by Oklahoma several times and Frank Broyles hasn't won all his games so how they're yelling one-platoon football."

"The losing coaches want to change and the Oklahomas, Notre Dames and USCs say no." "In the 1950s, they went to one-platoon football to save money and all the small schools in the country had less scholarships and played two platoon and all the major ones had more scholarships and played one platoon. "Jess Hill (at USC) had 120 guys on scholarship and they played one platoon."

"One-platoon football is nothing new. The money argument has already been used. We've changed the game twice now in my lifetime and it hasn't accomplished one damn thing. We can save money only by not having guys on scholarship."

McKay, the son of a West Virginia coal miner, played football at the University of Oregon. He played and coached one-platoon football and says he isn't even sure what it is.

"Before," he noted, "we changed the rule every year and I never knew what one-platoon football really meant. When they say one-platoon football, what do they mean?"

"Many years ago back when I was in high school, you went out for a quarter and couldn't come back in. So you just never took a guy out and it wasn't a safe game. Now we can take a kid out to the infirmary and X-ray him and see if he can continue."

(McKay says he's coaching one season at a time now. Tampa, Fla., comes into the National Football League in 1976 and he admits he's talked to Tampa owner Hugh Culverhouse.)

One-platoon football won't change anything about the sport, according to McKay. The winners would continue to win and the losers would continue to lose, he said.

In fact, he said USC, which has represented the Pacific-8 in seven of the last nine Rose Bowls, would be even stronger.

"We could put out one of the damndest teams you ever say," McKay stated.

"Just think of the athletes we have now, too. Ricky Bell is our tailback and that's not even his best position. His best position is linebacker. You can go down on whole roster like that."

W. Tech blasts Spartans, 10-2

WASHINGTON, N.J. — Jim Richline drove in four runs in the first two innings Monday to spark Warren Tech to its first victory of the season, 10-2 over Notre Dame of East Stroudsburg.

Richline singled in his team's first two runs in the opening inning and slammed a two-run homer over the left-field fence to increase Warren Tech's lead.

The Spartans, who are now 4-4, scored their only two runs in the first inning when Dick Quaresimo led off with a single, reached third on a stolen base and an error, and scored on Jeff Sobrinski's single.

Sobrinski came around to score on a pair of Warren Tech errors.

Winning pitcher Dave Hackett struck out seven Spartans and walked just one.

Spartan pitchers Matt Tolan and Chuck Bizousky walked a total of 10 men and were hurt by seven errors.

Trojans, 8-0

ALLENTOWN — Fred Silar enjoyed a perfect day at the plate and drove in three runs, including two on a second-inning homer, as Parkland blanked Pius X, 8-0 in an independent baseball game halted after five innings by rain.

Silar led off the Parkland first with a double off Pius starter Brian Happel and came around to score on a wild pitch and a fielder's choice.

The Trojans added a second run in the inning when Oscar Kister singled, stole second, and scored on Randy Seltzer's double.

Silar connected for a two-run homer to right-center to spark a three-run outburst in the second inning and drove in the Trojans' final run with a bloop single.

Dean Tiger added a two-run double in the third for a pair of insurance runs.

The Royals, who dropped to 5-9 for the season, could not get on the scoreboard against Trojan pitcher Doug Nelson. Nelson struck out nine batters and allowed four hits, two by Tony Casciano.

The two teams will meet again Wednesday in Roseto.

EAST STROUDSBURG — Lue Nases rapped out two doubles and drove in a pair of runs to pace East Stroudsburg to a 5-2 victory over Pleasant Valley in a junior varsity baseball game called after four-and-one-half innings.

Bill Frazetta received credit for the victory for the Cavaliers, who are now 6-2 for the season.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers placed ailing relief pitcher Mike Marshall on the 21-day disabled list Monday, and reactivated outfielder Bill Buckner.

three games back to beat Pittsburgh and get into the semifinals, aren't worried about Kate Smith.

"If they want to use Kate Smith as a crutch, that's fine with us," said Islander defenseman Gerry Hart. "They've still got to play the game."

And New York Coach Al Arbour said the singer "will be no factor. The game will be played on the ice."

Flyers' center and Team Captain Bobby Clarke said they "don't plan to do anything differently for the seventh game, not after you've played 100 games this year one way."

But he admitted that if there is such a thing as the Islanders having momentum after their three straight victories, "I hope it doesn't mean anything or we're in trouble."

Flyers' Coach Fred Shero said, "You can't intimidate the Islanders. We can't outmuscle them like we did in the seventh game against the Rangers last year (in the semifinals). The Islanders are too much like us."

Bill Barber, a Flyers' winger who has been playing injured, insisted that "our backs have been to the wall before."

But it was defenseman Joe Watson who expressed a thought that has to be on the minds of a lot of the Flyers.

Last Wednesday, the Flyers appeared to have completed a sweep of the series when Reggie Leach scored as time ran out at the end of regulation of the fourth game and the red goal light went on before the buzzer sounded. But officials ruled the clock had expired before the goal and the Islanders went on to win in sudden death.

"Just think," Watson said in New York after Sunday's loss. "One lousy second and we win four straight."

Shawnee tourney scheduled

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE — A better-ball partners tournament for men members-guests will be held Saturday at Shawnee Country Club.

The tournament, which gets off to a shotgun start at 12:30 p.m., will be full handicap-medal play.

Prizes will be awarded for first, second, and third low net and for first low gross. A special contest will be held for the shot closest to the pin. A dinner and dance will follow the golfing.

The deadline for entries is Thursday. All players must report to the course by noon Saturday. Joe Small and Les Abe-loff are serving as chairmen of the event.

It's time for Flyers to use Kate Smith

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Bring on Kate Smith.

For inspiration, the Philadelphia Flyers' management substitutes Miss Smith's "God Bless America" recording for the National Anthem in key situations. The singer appeared in person last season when the Flyers upset the Boston Bruins here to capture the Stanley Cup. The Flyers need inspiration now.

The defending Cup champions are only one game away from elimination in their semifinal series with the New York Islanders.

The Flyers once had a 3-0 advantage in games over the Islanders but now are tied at 3-3 and must win the seventh game tonight to go into the finals against the Buffalo Sabres.

The Islanders, again employing the tight defense the Flyers are famous for, won 2-1 in New York Sunday night, their third straight victory, to force the seventh-game showdown.

And the Islanders, who are seeking a second straight "miracle" after coming from

Native Guest earns spot in Saturday's Preakness

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Native Guest, whose owner will have to pay a supplementary entry fee of $10,000 for the Preakness, worked through six furlongs Monday at Pimlico and left trainer Bobby Frankel satisfied the money would be well spent.

The colt owned by W. A. Levin's Goldmill Farms turned the first quarter mile in 23 3-5 seconds, three furlongs in 35 1-5 seconds and the half mile in 47 1-5.

With former national riding champion Sandy Hawley in the saddle for the workout, Native Guest wound up his three quarter mile gallop in 1:12.

Before jumping in a car to catch a plane with Hawley back to California, Frankel described the colt's last serious workout before the May 17 Preakness as entirely satisfactory. "That's just what I wanted," Frankel said.

Native Guest never raced as a 2-year-old and was neither a Derby entry nor an original nominee for the Preakness.

But his four straight wins as a 3-year-old, including the Debonair and the El Dorado Handicap at Hollywood Park, have persuaded Levin to pay the extra fee required of Preakness entries not nominated by the Feb. 15 closing date.

In the meantime, the Preakness field appeared to have leveled off at an even 10. Trainer Johnny Campo arrived Monday from New York with Media, the fifth place finisher in the Derby, and Just the Time, who will enter the race paired with Media.

Campo said he would put Jose Velasquez on Media for the Preakness instead of Derby jockey Jean Cruguet. Ron Turcotte, the jockey who guided Secretariat to his Triple Crown in 1973, will ride Just the Time.

Lou Rondinello, the trainer of Darby Dan Farms' Prince Thou Art, told Pimlico officials from Belmont Park that he was "leaning" toward running his sixth place Derby finisher in the Preakness and would decide after a 3- or 4-furlong workout Thursday.

With those three horses counted, the field for the "Run for the Black Eyed Susans" now looks like this (tentative odds following each horse were set Monday by Pimlico odds-maker Earl Hart): Foolish Pleasure 6-5; Avatar 4-1; Diabolo 6-1; Singh 8-1; Master Derby 8-1; Prince Thou Art 12-1; Native Guest 15-1; Bold Chapeau 20-1; and Media and Just the Time, paired at 20-1.

Singh, a son of Bold Ruler who missed the Derby because of an injury, rated equal odds with Master Derby, the fourth place Derby finisher, on the strength of his strong showing in the Preakness Prep Saturday.

Pimlico officials said the 10 entries would be racing for a purse of $210,600, with the winner of the second leg of the Triple Crown to get $158,100.

Allen may join roster soon

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies said Monday no definite time has been set for Dick Allen to be activated, but it possibly could be by Wednesday.

The Phillies acquired Allen, who has sat out the start of the baseball season, from the Atlanta Braves last week in a trade but he has not yet been added to the active roster.

Allen has been working out privately while the team has been on the road, but was scheduled to practice with them before Monday night's game with the Cincinnati Reds.

A club spokesman said it depended on how Allen looked during the workouts Monday and today when he would be added to the 25-man roster.

Manager Danny Ozark said he was "not concerned about Allen's hitting. But I do want to see how his legs are before making a definite decision."

The Phillies will have to move a player to make room for Allen and there was speculation that outfielder Alan Bannister would be optioned to Toledo or that it would be outfielder Don Hahn.

Another labor dispute threatens '76 Olympics

MONTREAL (UPI) — A labor dispute again has placed in jeopardy the completion of facilities for the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

Officials of the city and the Montreal Olympic Organizing Committee (COJO) expressed fears Monday a prolonged strike at the main Olympic stadium site could put in doubt this city's ability to stage the games, scheduled to begin July 17, 1976.

"We were already working on an extremely tight schedule," said Lawrence Hanigan, chairman of Montreal's executive committee. "Certainly we can't afford another stoppage like the (two month strike) last winter."

"Every day is important to be sure facilities are ready on time, so I would think it is a very critical situation."

The dispute erupted last week when the Quebec government introduced legislation that four large construction unions be placed in trusteeship. The report sparked an outcry from the unions and a walkout of the nearly 2,000 workers at the Olympic site Thursday.

The men have not returned to the job and all work on the $380 million stadium complex, the velodrome and the Olympic village has been halted.

COJO executive vice president Simon St. Pierre said in a news conference that "the work stoppage, if it is just three days, is not too bad. (But) if it's longer, it could be pretty bad."

"But," he said, "we do not yet consider the situation to be critical to the point where you should be nervous. We'll settle our problems with the assumption that the games are going on in 1976."

St. Pierre conceded that the strike could increase the costs of the games—already facing a projected $200 million deficit—and could force construction crews to work 24 hours a day, seven days a week, in order to complete the project by its May, 1976, target date.

Prior to the walkout, work at the site was round-the-clock, six days a week.

Colonels' Dampier expects Pacers to play 'alley ball'

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Louie Dampier, the team captain and elder statesman of the Kentucky Colonels, expects the Indiana Pacers to play "a lot of alley ball" in the American Basketball Association championship playoffs opening tonight between the two arch-rivals.

"They may not like to call it alley ball, but that's what it amounts to," said Dampier, who hails from the Indianapolis suburb of Southport, Ind.

"The big difference between this Indiana team and the one that beat us in the championship finals two years ago is that this team does not go in much for patterns, they just run and shoot," Dampier said.

"Indiana lets George McGinnis do everything," said Dampier, the only player who has been with the Colonels since the club was formed. "They just give McGinnis the ball and let him try to score or penetrate and pass off to the open man. It's strictly a McGinnis-oriented team."

McGinnis, a muscular 6-8 Indianapolis native, has ave-aged 34 points, nearly 17 rebounds and nine assists a game in carrying the Pacers to victory over the San Antonio Spurs and season-champion Denver Nuggets in the playoffs.

Indiana finished third behind both of those teams in the Western Division regular-season standings.

While Indiana's attack is geared primarily to McGinnis, Kentucky's offense largely revolves around 7-2 Artis Gilmore. He has averaged 23.7 points and 15.9 rebounds per game as the Colonels dispatched the Memphis Sounds and the St. Louis Spirits in the playoffs.

"Gilmore is our chief worry in this series," said Indiana coach Bob "Slick" Leonard. "We feel like we can handle the rest of the players."

Gilmore says he expects to be double- and triple-teamed throughout the series, just as he has been most of the season.

"Hopefully, I'll be aware of looking for the open man when they slough off on me and we can take advantage of it," the Colonels giant said.

The Kentucky "brain trust" feels it is awfully hard to prepare for Indiana because the Pacers are such an unpredictable team.

"They're a gambling type of team. There is no rhyme or reason to their defensive philosophy," said coach Hubie Brown. "Because of that, this should be an extremely wild series."

"Indiana is the only team I know of that will penetrate the three-point perimeter and then back up beyond the line to get off a three-point bomb any time during the game," said Kentucky assistant coach Stan Albeck. "You can live or die by the three-pointer. This team has lived by it."

The Colonels, coming off a 15-day layoff since they beat St. Louis in the Eastern Division finals, will be host for the first two games tonight and Thursday night. The best-of-seven series then moves to Indianapolis for games three and four Saturday and next Monday nights before returning here for game five, if necessary, May 22.

If the series goes the seven-game limit, it won't end until May 28.

Millard takes title in 'Hotel'

BUSHKILL — Rich Millard returned a 79, seven-over-par, Thursday to take low gross honors by three strokes in the Pocono Mountain Hotel and Restaurant Show golf tournament at Fernwood Country Club.

The tournament was co-sponsored by Fernwood C.C. and the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau in Stroudsburg.

Millard finished three strokes ahead of Dick Brown, who had an 82.

Low net honors went to Larry Leary with a 70, while George Morrissey was second, also three shots back at 73. Russ Irwin took low putts honors.

Finks defends 'Rozelle Rule'

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Chicago Bears General Manager Jim Finks believes abolishing the Rozelle rule "would ultimately destroy professional football" because it would reduce competition, he said in a deposition read Monday in federal court.

The testimony by Finks, former general manager of the Minnesota Vikings, was read at the Rozelle rule trial in U.S. District Court.

"The compensation (Rozelle) rule is one very, very important rule that goes along with other rules to insure competition," Finks said. "If you just abolish it and allow complete freedom of movement without compensation, it would ultimately destroy professional football."

"It definitely would reduce competition and I firmly believe that."

Under the provision, National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle is empowered to set compensation before an athlete who plays out his option can be signed as a free agent by another team.

Fifteen present and former NFL players, including former Vikings Clinton Jones, Gene Washington and Charlie West, are challenging the rule, which they say is "monopolistic" and "restricts a player's mobility to move to another team." Oakland's Dan Connors has dropped out of the lawsuit.

Rozelle, the NFL and its club owners are the defendants.

Jones, Washington and West played out their options with Minnesota in 1971 and became free agents on May 1, 1972.

"There was a lot of dialogue by the Vikings and other teams" concerning a trade of the three players, who at one time bargained as a unit, Finks said in the deposition.

"I talked to many clubs about the three," said Finks. "Some I sought out and some sought me out about it."

Finks said Pittsburgh was interested in West, now a Detroit Lions defensive back, but the Steelers didn't want to give up wide receiver Ron Shanklin, who the Vikings wanted in return.

The general manager said wide receiver Washington expressed interest in being traded to Oakland because "he'd like to live in the bay area and his wife was from Oakland." However, no deal was made.

Finks said the Cleveland Browns were interested in Jones, a running back originally from Cleveland. Again, he said a trade was never worked out.

The three signed contracts with the Vikings in the summer of 1972.

Players attorney Edward Glennon asked Finks if he attempted any trades between May 1, 1972, and their signings.

"My effort after May 1 was always to sign them to Minnesota Vikings contracts," Finks replied, "because I felt that was where they wanted to and should play."

Also read into the record Monday were portions of a deposition taken from Dallas General Manager Tex Schramm, who will be a witness today.

Glennon said Ed Garvey, NFL Players Association executive director, would testify some time before the trial recesses Thursday noon.

Horses need Coggins test

WIND GAP — The Plainfield Riding Club has voted to require all horses and ponies to have a 1975 negative Coggins test to enter the club grounds for the May 25 show or any shows, rides or activities for the remainder of the season.

Papers will be checked before horses enter the club grounds.

"We sympathize with the fact Tiant hasn't seen his parents in 15 years," said Jose Salazar, chairman of the Cuban Exile Committee of Massachusetts, "But what is the priority when there are over 500 American political prisoners illegally detained in Cuba over the past 15 years."

"Wouldn't it seem natural that our congressmen ask for the release of those prisoners?" Salazar asked.
